PERILS OF DISEASE ADD NEW HORRORS TO STORM'S WAKE

Fear of Pestilence Grips Santo Domingo as Hurred Calls for Anti-Toxin Are Broadcast.

BY FRANCISCO ESCOBAR.
United News Staff Correspondent.
SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Fear of pestilence gripped Santo Domingo today as relief workers labored to restore sanitary conditions.

Scores of persons, mutilated by the hurricane, died in the last 24 hours of gangrene, which spread rapidly among the thousands injured in last Wednesday's disaster. Some estimated that 1,000 had perished of infection, in addition to those killed in the storm.

Director Jons, of the Haitian general hospital, active in the swiftly mobilized relief work, declared anti-toxin was badly needed. Gangrene otherwise might spread virtually unchecked among the tortured living, fighting for lives almost flung out by the great wind.

One shipment of anti-toxin is due tomorrow from Philadelphia, coming by airplane. But this will be insufficient, reports from the hospital indicate. Official casualty figures given out by General Simon Diaz, chief of Santo Domingo's army, put the dead today at 2,800 and the injured at 15,000. Both figures were rising steadily as relief work moved doggedly forward.

Burial parties went about the gruesome task of burning bodies of the storm victims. The last company to be placed the figure at 1,500 bodies which had been cremated.

The workers today, burned bodies where they found them. They could no longer be gathered in piles, due to putrefaction in the tropical heat.

Medical men, who said the danger of pestilence was serious, began giving anti-typhoid inoculations at police headquarters today. Other vaccination stations were organized.

Surgeons operated with butcher knives or other kitchen utensils. They frequently were forced to work without anesthetics. Lack of supplies and surgical equipment brought about this reversion to the primitive.

Limbless Thrown in Sea.

Amputated limbs were thrown into the sea. The stench of the dead was horrible.

The people were alarmed at false rumors of a new sea monster reported coming to the south, near Trinidad.

Medicines and food have arrived on relief ships and planes, but the supplies are inadequate. The tens of thousands of homeless are being offered rations to keep them alive while the Red Cross and other agencies seek first to aid the injured.

Lack of running water in Santo Domingo hampers work of restoring cleanliness to the city. The city fathers are working to have the water system in order within 48 hours, but the work is slow.

Maina were broken by the hurricane and streets underlain by fallen buildings were buried deep in fallen buildings.

Irigoyen, Ousted in Revolt, Is Now Battling for Life

BY NELSON J. RILEY.
Associated Press Correspondent.
BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Hipolito Irigoyen, a man reputedly near 80 years old, who for 14 years ruled Argentina directly or indirectly, died in the seventh infirmary of the seventh infirmary at La Plata.

Although not officially a prisoner of the revolting forces which unseated him last night, he is to all intents and purposes, he was detained when he arrived last night, but after his illness took a more severe turn was informed he was not a prisoner.

The former president is suffering from pneumonia and overstrain. His temperature was high last night, but it was said tonight he had shown improvement. A report that he had been paralyzed was denied.

Beside his bed in the seventh infirmary sat only those who stayed with him in this sunset—his daughter; three physicians, Dr. Gonzalez, Dr. Avila and Dr. Meabe; and the most picturesque figure of all, Vicente Sciarletto, a life-long friend who until the revolt operated a tobacco shop on the ground floor of the president's private residence in the Calle Brazil at Buenos Aires.

Sciarletto, whose influence with Irigoyen is greater than that of any

MARKET LEADERS SEE SHARP PRICE RISES THIS WEEK

Strong Upturn Is Expected To Follow Steady Recovery Made During Last Several Days.

BY ELMER C. WALKER.
United News Financial Editor.
NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—A week ago Wall Street predicted a rise through resistance levels in the stock market. That rise has been accomplished in more active trading, and now the Street looks for a sharp upturn in prices.

The resistance levels measured by the Dow Jones & Co. industrial average stood at 241. Three times since mid-June the market has come within a fraction of this figure only to retreat sharply each time. Now that the average has crossed the figure to above 245, sentiment has turned bullish.

Usual Length.

Paralleling the improved market has been a definite turn upward in business. Incidentally, the business recession has now run more than a year while the stock market decline has been in progress just a year, about the usual length of time for depression.

Among the straws in the wind of business betterment were increased steel ingot production, better chain store sales in the final weeks of August, better sentiment in the automobile business with good reception reported for several of the new models; statements by business leaders that the turn had come and favorable comment on industry and trade by Dun's and Bradstreet's.

Last week trading volume was almost wholly professional. However, a rise of $8,000,000 in brokerage loans was taken to indicate that the speculative traders were making purchases. It was argued that entry of the public would send the stock market into higher ground promptly.

Speed Spurt Causes Worry.

The one worry that appeared in the street was that the market might be carried up too rapidly and might overdo itself, business advancing to such extent that the resulting decline would be demoralizing for everything happened last spring and traders are seeking to guard against a repetition.

STATE AND COUNTY CANDIDATES NEAR END OF CAMPAIGN

Chief Interest in State-Wide Contests; Legislative Battle in County.

With all state and county candidates having virtually terminated their campaign addresses in the various races, ranging from those aspiring to United States senatorial honors down to legislative posts, Fulton county citizens and the prospective voters in the remainder of the state today were awaiting primary election day Wednesday, when they will go to the polls and cast their ballots for the candidates of their choice.

Last-minute statements of candidates and their campaign managers leaned heavily toward the optimistic, each claiming, in effect, that the election, so far as the particular aspirant was concerned, is just as good as "in the bag." Only a scattering of last-minute addresses will be made between now and primary day, and the prospective voter meantime will have brief opportunity to review the contentions of all office-seekers before he makes his final decision.

Chief interest in the present primary, observers hold, lies unquestionably in the gubernatorial contest, in which five well-known Georgians are up for nomination, each having exhausted every means of exhortative and persuasive influence in behalf of himself, while overlooking the opportunity to exhortate the opposition. The issues in this campaign, it is pointed out, are well-defined, but candidates are generally generally having accepted the gambit of state debate thrown down by George H. Carswell, one of the leading entries in the state executive post race.

Interest in Senate Race.

No mean interest, however, is that drawn by the forthcoming race between William J. Harris, senator from Georgia, and former Governor John M. Slaton, who have campaigned up and down the state for the past several months and who respectively are the public and private faces of the much-disputed international subject.

Other posts to be filled by the result of the public vote Wednesday are the offices of governor, comptroller-general, commissioner of agriculture, commissioner of commerce and labor, state superintendent of schools, pension commissioner, prison commissioner, public service commissioner, and the offices of the supreme court (two contests), and two judges of the court of appeals.

In addition to the national office aspect of the race as embodied in the race between Harris and Slaton, Georgians Wednesday will nominate three of six candidates for as many seats in the United States House of Representatives in Washington. In the fifth (Fulton) district Representative C. W. Ramsey, of Decatur, finds himself opposed by Allen M. Weaver, of Atlanta, while Thomas M. Bell, of the ninth district, incumbent, faces Judge John Wood, and Representative William C. Lanford, of the tenth district, faces the late Richard B. Russell, Jr., facing one of the stiffest fights in the history of primaries in the state over the bone of contention represented by the irrepressible issue of disposition of state debts as injected into the campaign by Carswell.

Carswell Proposal.

The proposal of Carswell, as outlined in his campaign speeches throughout the length and breadth of the state, would divert $5,000,000 of the funds derived from the sale of the state's public lands to the state to base an arrest.

Belgian Crown Princess Gives Birth to Royal Heir

CROWN PRINCESS ASTRID.

BRUSSELS, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Crown Princess Astrid, of Belgium, gave birth to a son today. As her first child was a girl, the little boy becomes heir to the Belgian throne in the direct male line.

The baby was born at Stuyvenberg castle, which has been fenced off from public curiosity by barbed wire in an unending ceremony in Diksmuide this morning. He was named Prince Leopold, Marie Jose herself expects a baby about next January.

The baby prince weighs nearly nine pounds. He was baptized tonight with the name Eudouard Albert Axel Marie-Gustave.

News of the birth was announced to the populace by a salute of 101 guns and aroused great joy. Great crowds gathered outside Stuyvenberg castle to cheer Leopold, his wife and new son.

Announcement of the birth was answered by demonstrations of enthusiastic loyalty from the populace.

News of the birth was immediately telephoned to the crown princess of Italy, the former Marie Jose, of Belgium, sister of Crown Prince Leopold. Marie Jose herself expects a baby about next January.

KEY TO HOLD TITLE UNTIL FORMATION OF BONDED GROUP

Deed in Mayor-Elect's Possession Calls for 2,600 Feet on Scarp of Mountain.

GREAT AUDIENCE ACCLAIMS SCULPTOR

Dr. Ashby Jones, in Eloquent Plea, Urges Present Generation To Meet Own Responsibilities.

An unconditional deed to the space needed for the carving of a great Confederate monument on Stone Mountain has been turned over to the city in care of Mayor-elect James L. Key. It was announced following an enthusiastic reception tendered Gutzon Borglum, noted sculptor, by citizens of Atlanta meeting Sunday afternoon at the Fox theater.

The title to the mountain face will be held in escrow by Mr. Key, it was announced, pending action by borough council in officially accepting it on behalf of the city and the designation of a bonded commission of citizens and officials to take charge of plans for the completion of the great memorial.

The title, held by Frank G. Mason, S. H. Venable, Mrs. Priestly Orr and Mrs. Walter G. Roper, now is in the hands of the mayor-elect and little delay is expected to be encountered, leaders said, before actual work is resumed on the mountain.

Receiving the great sculptor amid fervent ovations and with a hospitable welcome, Atlantans Sunday turned out in large numbers to hear Borglum describe his plans for giving to Atlanta and the southland the world's most colossal epic in granite.

Jones in Eloquent Plea.

In an eloquent plea for the present generation to meet what he characterized as its own responsibility, Dr. M. Ashby Jones, former pastor of the Ponce de Leon Baptist church, who made a special visit to Atlanta from St. Louis Sunday to take part in the public reception, prefaced his talk with the rhetorical question: "What does Atlanta think of Lee?"

Borglum, at the outset, received a great tribute of unanimous applause, probably the greatest rendered during the afternoon, after Mayor-elect Key, in his speech presenting the famous artist, declared that while Borglum had not yet been employed to carve the enlarged design on granite, "I believe he is the only man who can do the work."

As Borglum himself concluded an unusually forceful presentation of his five-year silence and of his greatly renewed hopes of completing the statue he hoped to see his masterpiece. Benjamin S. Blackburn, called for the big audience to stand as a mark of its appreciation of the sculptor's return. As to a man it stood.

Provisions of Deed.

Under the deed given Sunday into the keeping of Mr. Key unconditional title to the memorial site passes into the hands of the city as called for the approximately 200 feet now held by the Stone Mountain Memorial Association is secured, and a commission is named to proceed with arrangements for the completion of the memorial.

Under the deed a year's time is granted for the memorial to be carried out, and it is expected that both can be accomplished within a year.

DRY'S ACCUSATION DENIED BY CURTIS

Use of Influence in Obtaining Alcohol Permit Charged.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—(UN)—Publication in tomorrow's Washington Post, on the street tonight, of a copyrighted article bearing his name with the exception of a single sentence in behalf of alcohol prohibition permittees, brought an immediate and indignant denial from Vice President Curtis tonight.

In a handwritten statement to the United News, the vice president expressed "amusement" and made a general denial that he influence as a senator, before he became vice president, was used for the purpose of "securing alcohol permits as alleged by Major Campbell."

He referred to Major Campbell, until recently prohibition administrator for the eastern New York district, who mentioned Curtis' name prominently in the first of a series of copyrighted articles on prohibition enforcement conditions in the east.

The vice president's statement, written at his home, interrupted a quiet family evening of the former Kansas senator and present vice president. The full text of the statement follows:

"I was greatly amused to read the statement in today's Washington Post in Major Campbell's article on prohibition enforcement that I, while a senator, had used my influence in Washington to secure for the purpose of securing alcohol permits as alleged by Major Campbell."

"I did not at any time back campaign managers or anyone else by my influence in Washington for the purpose of securing alcohol permits as alleged by Major Campbell."

HOOVER TO HONOR SEA FLERS TODAY

Large Crowds Welcome Coste and Bellonte to Washington.

BY NATHAN ROBERTSON.
United News Staff Correspondent.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—(UN)—The French ocean conquerors reached Washington today on an errand of good will, to receive high official honors tomorrow for their record western Atlantic flight.

Captain Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte, in their Question Mark seaplane, landed at Bolling field at 4:59 p. m., official time, to be greeted enthusiastically by a crowd estimated at more than 10,000 and a reception committee sent by President Hoover. Presidential Secretary Akerson and the president's son, Herbert, Jr., were among those at the field, as the giant red plane taxied up to the reception stand.

Coste and Bellonte will be the guests of President Hoover tomorrow noon for an official luncheon and reception at the White House, attended by the most famous of American war and peace-time aviators, including Charles A. Lindbergh, Richard E. Byrd and Edward Rickenbacker. Other functions in their honor will follow.

They were the guests tonight of the French embassy, where they went directly in a White House automobile from the army and navy flying field where they landed.

Across Wind.

The plane landed across the wind, which was not strong enough to effect the landing. As soon as the Question Mark was taxied in position before the welcoming party awaited Coste and Bellonte stood up in the cockpit, stripped off their coats and goggles and revealed each man dressed in blue. Coste, a silk hatched, herched tied about his clean white collar, leaned over the plane and shook hands with George Akerson, representing President Hoover, and other dignitaries of the welcoming party.

Just as the men jumped from the plane the army band struck up the Marseilles. Someone in the crowd shouted, "Attention," and Coste and Bellonte rigidly faced the music. It was with difficulty, even while the French national anthem was played that the crowd was held in restraint. Shouts in French arose as the fliers countrymen surged in, surrounding the plane and aviators.

Akerson presented President Hoover's welcome and Coste replied in broken English, expressing pleasure at the honor and asking the president to accept the plane as a gift.

JOHN R. SLATER DIES IN DOUGLAS

Manager of Al Smith's Campaign in Georgia Drops Dead at Home.

DOUGLAS, Ga., Sept. 7.—(AP)—John R. Slater, 38, who managed Al Smith's campaign in Georgia in the last national election, dropped dead here at noon today.

He was the son of the law firm of Slater, Moore, O'Berry and Whelless and was former mayor of Douglas.

Mr. Slater was in another part of the house, entertaining a party, when his husband was stricken.

Mr. Slater had been in poor health for a year or more and was in a hospital in Baltimore for several months. He was believed to be on the road to recovery and had just returned Saturday from a fishing trip.

He is survived by his widow, mother and stepfather, Dr. J. M. Smith, Valdosta. No funeral arrangements have been made.

Mr. Slater was mayor of Douglas for four years and was president of the Union Banking Company until his health failed. He had served as president of the Kiwanis Club, president of the Georgia Association, and was an overseas war veteran, with rank of captain. For some time after the World War he was attached to the attorney general's office in Washington. He was a member of the staff of Governor Clifford Walker, during his administration, and was a director of the Douglas Grocery Company. He took his A. B. degree at Vanderbilt and studied law at the University of Georgia.

He was not until after the World War that he moved to Douglas.

He married Mrs. J. M. Ashley, widow of the former president of the Union Banking Company of Douglas, shortly after his return from foreign service.

Mrs. Ashley's husband died in 1912. Slater succeeded him after the death of a breakdown in health during the close of the national campaign. He had been overworked, it was stated. He never recovered from that, though his friends believed that he was on the road to recovery following his return from the Baltimore hospital and his set program of spending much of his time in the open air.

Mr. Slater was always proud of the showing that Georgia made in the national campaign. This state gave Al Smith a majority of more than 66,000, or more than a 2-to-1 victory over Herbert Hoover.

90 - Gallon Still On Hemphill Ave. Wrecked in Blast

Either from too potent ingredients or, more probably, police believe, as a result of excessive steam pressure, a 90-gallon wooden still fed by a 40-gallon steel drum boiler blew up early Sunday night in the attic of a residence at 878 Hemphill avenue, causing a fire which two companies were called to extinguish and resulting in the confiscation of 100 gallons of corn liquor and 600 gallons of mash, police reports revealed.

The explosion, while terrific, caused no personal injury, but it had the effect of uncovering a moonshine headquarters operated by at least three unidentified men, one of whom carried a gun, according to police investigating officers. They found, among other things in the debris of the explosion, a supply of women's clothing, together with a blonde wig, J. S. Jenkins, city fireman, who lives at 878 Hemphill avenue, next door to the house in which the explosion occurred, fished out a few seconds after the blast, he told police later, observed one man dashing out the back hall as he peered in from the front door. He said he had seen three men in the unoccupied house at intervals during the last five months.

The house was considerably damaged in the upper part by the explosion and the resultant blaze.

Call Officers Ed Norwood and Arthur Dailey and Plainclothesmen J. A. Hamilton and A. L. Allen investigated the case and clues upon which to base an arrest.

SIMON W. STRAUS DIES AT NEW YORK

63-Year-Old Financier Known for Origination of Mortgage Bonds.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Simon William Straus, noted financier, chairman of the board of S. W. Straus and Company, died at his suite at the Hotel Ambassador today. He was 63 and had been ill for more than a year.

Generally recognized as the originator of the modern first mortgage real estate bond, he also was one of the pioneers in aiding the development of the American skyscraper.

His company was among the first to finance large buildings and the banker won wide recognition through his plan for safeguarding first mortgage loans on improved real estate and making this form of security available to the general investing public.

Mr. Straus started his career in Chicago. His father, Frederick, William Straus, founded the Citizens' bank in Ligonier, Ind., after he came to this country from Germany. Later he moved to Chicago and opened a small mortgage office, his son entering the business in 1884.

The firm, first known as F. W. Straus and Company, became, when the father retired, S. W. Straus and Company, the son taking over the management.

Mr. Straus assumed the presidency when the concern was incorporated in 1905 after a rapid growth. He continued in this post until 1929 when he became chairman of the board. He moved to New York in 1915 and devoted the major part of his time to that office and the development of branches throughout the country.

Under his leadership the company erected the Straus building in New York and Chicago. In 1928 he established the Straus National Bank and Trust companies in Chicago and New York.

Mr. Straus was president of the American Society for Thrift which he founded in 1915. He was the author of "History of the Thrift Movement in America."

Detroit Detective, Gunman Slain in Duel.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 7.—(AP)—Detective Edward Barney, of the Detroit police department, and an unidentified gunman were fatally wounded in a gun battle here today.

The dead gunman was tentatively identified as Leo Genova.

Police were sent to a residence near the suburb of Highland Park this afternoon after receiving word that the place was a "gangster hangout."

LEAGUE TO OPEN SESSIONS TODAY

Brind's "United States of Europe" Is Up for Discussion.

GENEVA, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Prominent European statesmen began arriving today for the League of Nations meeting which will open tomorrow.

Dr. Julius Curtius, German foreign minister, and Aristide Briand, foreign minister of France, arrived at the head of their respective delegations. Minister Dino Grandi, of Italy, is expected tomorrow. Arthur Henderson, British foreign secretary, reached here last week.

Tomorrow afternoon a congress of statesmen will discuss Brind's plan for a European federation.

It has been generally understood the federation project will be placed in the hands of a special committee or commission for further study, but a commission is named to proceed of statesmen or by the league assembly itself.

The majority opinion is that the league assembly will name a group to conduct further research on the "United States of Europe" plan.

The probability that the question of treaty revision would be raised by the Germans in the assembly grew fainter tonight as those professing to know the attitude of Dr. Curtius indicated that the German foreign minister was determined to pursue the course laid down by Dr. Gustave Stresemann.

Revision will be discussed somewhat discreetly and tentatively—it is said, but will not be made an open issue.

One thing which created a ripple of interest today was the news that Grandi and the Italian delegation, which on Grandi's former visits to Geneva has stayed in the same hotel as the French, have taken quarters in another hostelry this time.

Fourth Ranking U. S. Ace Dies in Crash.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 7.—(UN)—Captain John O. Donaldson, 34, fourth ranking American ace in the World War and president of the Newark Air Service, was killed today when his plane failed to come out of a spin and crashed during the American Legion air meet at the municipal airport.

Donaldson was giving an exhibition in a Travel Air biplane owned by Mrs. Opal Logan Koonitz, former wife of a vice president of Tiffany's, New York society jeweler.

Donaldson was a son of Major General T. Q. Donaldson, U. S. army. Monday; little change in temperature.

Lawyers' Opinion of James K. Jordan

Candidate for Judge of Fulton Superior Court.

ANDERSON, ROUNTREE, CRENSHAW & HANSELL
"Col. Jordan is a man of the finest character, eminent ability, and will, in my opinion, fill the position of Judge of the Superior Court of Fulton County in a most faithful and satisfactory manner."
CLIFFORD L. ANDERSON.

DILLON, CALHOUN & DILLON
"I want to commend your fitness for the office of Judge of the Superior Court to the voters of this county."

"Your temperament, education and experience as a lawyer will fit you for this position and I know if elected, you will fill the office with dignity and to the satisfaction of all concerned."
WALTER S. DILLON.

PAUL DONEHO
"I want to take this means of expressing my gratification at the opportunity you are giving the voters of Fulton County to elect you Judge of the Superior Court."

"From my long and intimate acquaintance with you I know that you possess the background, character, learning, temperament, and sound judgment which qualify you eminently for a Superior Court Judgeship, and it will be my pleasure not only to give you my unqualified personal support but to exert such influence as I can in your behalf."
PAUL DONEHO.

J. MALLORY HUNT
"I have always found you honest, fair and very capable, as well as well poised. You possess a quick judicial mind, and have always been informed as to the law, and the distinguishing marks of decisions."
J. MALLORY HUNT.

LITTLE, POWELL, REID & GOLDSTEIN
"I think you possess to a very high degree those qualifications so important to this office: Absolute freedom from personal or political affiliations that hamper an impartial administration of justice; the moral courage to give full effect to the law at all hazards to personal fortune; a successful experience in the trial of cases and a splendid knowledge of the law."
CHARLES S. REID.

PAYNE & JONES
"It is with pleasure that I endorse your candidacy for election as Judge of the Superior Court of Fulton County."
"You are, in my opinion, fully qualified by ability, temperament, and training, to serve in this important position."
WINFIELD P. JONES.

WALTER A. SIMS
JOSEPH E. BERMAN
"Your record as an attorney at the Atlanta bar is one of which any lawyer should be proud, and your profound legal learning and training, together with your pleasure in the trial of cases and your office to which you aspire."
WALTER A. SIMS.

WATKINS, ASBILL & WATKINS
"It is my judgment that you are eminently qualified to serve as Judge of Fulton Superior Court. I believe that you can and will fill the judgeship in a manner that would reflect credit upon yourself and the office, and that your tenure of office would be entirely satisfactory to the members of the local bar."
"MAC ASBILL."

NOTE: Address to voters over WGST Tuesday at 7 P. M. and Wednesday (election day) at 7:30 A. M.

Brown, Sunday issued the following statement:
"In your paper of September 7, there is a statement from George Eckford given in quotations, presumably the exact words of Mr. Eckford, as follows: 'A vote for anyone of my three opponents will be a vote for the courthouse ring,' which is utterly false in so far as it applies to Virgil E. Adams, and was known to be false by Mr. Eckford when he made it. For the past several days I have been hearing that someone was whispering that I am an under-cover courthouse or county ring man. Until I saw the quotation attributed to Mr. Eckford in the papers of September 7, I had no idea who was so grossly ignorant of my position, or so lacking in moral character as to circulate such an unwarranted falsehood. At this time I wish to brand it as absolutely false and request that this denial be given the same publicity by your paper that the false statement above quoted had."

I am certainly the independent voter and expect to be overwhelmingly elected September 10, to succeed Dr. Brown, and if elected shall remain the taxpayers' servant. Mr. Eckford insists that I am the only good businessman in the race. I am wondering if it is good business policy to spend 10 times the amount of money to try to get elected to an office as the total legitimate compensation of that office is.
"VIRGIL E. ADAMS."

Support Is Asked By Jesse Simmons

Calling upon the people of Fulton county to elect him to the post in the legislature made vacant by the retirement of Miss Bessie Kempton, Candidate Jesse B. Simmons issued the following statement Sunday:
"I am asking the people of Fulton county to elect me to the legislature to the vacancy caused by the retirement of Miss Bessie Kempton. In my race I have refused to be led into any general attack on the judiciary and constitutionality of the state for the reason that I believe in charging any evils that may exist to those who are individually guilty and in correcting those evils by regular administrative procedure. The people who are now serving the city and county faithfully deserve to be upheld in that service. Those who are not doing their duty should be removed from office in the fair and regular way. Not by violent criticism on the part of a selfish candidate for office."

"My position on all public matters is clearly understood by all people who want to be fair. I ran for the legislature two years ago and was defeated by a few hundred votes with more than 13,000 polled. I said in that race that I favored electing judges of the municipal court by popular vote. I still favor this method of naming that court and if I am elected I will propose and vote for a bill to name these judges just as other judges are named."

"In my race two years ago I stated that I was in favor of electing the clerk of court by direct vote of the people and I am firm in this conviction today and will so vote."

"I believe in the present system of electing our city council and I am opposed to the commission form of government."

"If elected I will faithfully strive to provide means for the prompt payment by the state of all salaries to our teachers and pensions to our Confederate veterans."

"I will fully request endorsement of the people next Wednesday at the ballot box."

CARSWELL ANSWERS 'BOOK TRUST' CHARGE

Defending himself against allegations that he is backed by the school book trust, George H. Carswell, candidate for governor, Sunday issued a statement declaring that, if elected, he will do all in his power toward passage of a uniform textbook law, but that until Georgia's indebtedness is paid it is too early to begin agitation for free or "ten-cent" school books.

"Several times during the campaign that is coming to a close, my opponents have sought, by insinuation, to connect me with the schoolbook trust," Mr. Carswell said. "The only basis for such a charge that any of them have produced is that former Governor Clifford Walker, who is reputedly attorney for some of the schoolbook companies, is supporting me for the governorship."

"Governor Walker is privileged to support whom he pleases in this campaign and for whatever reason he chooses. I believe he is supporting me because he, as a former governor acquainted with the state's finances, knows that the plan of paying the state's debts which I have proposed is the only possible plan, outside an increase of 100 per cent in the state property tax, by which the debts can be paid. However, Governor Walker does not find himself alone among those prominently connected in Georgia politics who are giving me their support. Joseph E. Brown, former governor of Georgia and political antagonist of former Governor Smith in some of the most stirring political campaigns in Georgia, is also supporting me."

"The schoolbook question has been used in the present campaign as an instrument of demagoguery. Mr. Russell has said that he purposes, as governor, to foster legislation that will provide schoolbooks for children of the state at 10 cents a copy. Mr. Rivers has gone him one better and has said that he purposes to give schoolbooks free to the children of the state."

"Intelligent people will not be taken in by either of those statements. To provide schoolbooks at 10 cents each for the children of Georgia would require, at the present, greatly increased taxation from the people who would buy the books. We already owe the teachers of this state $4,000,000. We ought to be just before we are generous; we ought to pay the teachers the $4,000,000 we owe them before we make a promise of another $4,000,000 that, in the present financial condition of the state, we cannot pay. Georgia does not own a copyright to her name. She would have to buy them. She would have to contract for printing books; she would have to make an enormous outlay of money before she would even be in position to sell schoolbooks at 10 cents, even if she put Tanc, ads on the front and Sargon ads on the back. Mr. Russell's promise to sell books at 10 cents each and Mr. Rivers' promise to give them away are intended only to delude the people who have not reckoned the cost to themselves. Neither would be able to fulfill his promise."

Uniform Textbook Law.

"There are two legitimate grounds for dissatisfaction with the schoolbook situation. We need a uniform textbook law that is compulsory and that will obviate the necessity for changing books every time a child moves from one county to another and we need a more stable method of selecting books that will eliminate the necessity for substitution. If I am elected governor I shall do all in my power to endeavor to stabilize the schoolbook situation in Georgia by having a uniform schoolbook law and to reduce the expense to book buyers. Nobody could promise any more than that and be honest."

"There is a statute upon the books in Georgia which provides that schoolbooks shall be sold in Georgia at the lowest price charged in other states in the union. If elected, it is my purpose to determine whether that statute is being lived up to, and if not, to take steps to see that it is observed."

"The very opponents who have raised the 'book trust' issue have done nothing whatever except make rash promises about what they will do in the future. Mr. Rivers was in the senate, chairman of the powerful appropriations committee and influential enough to induce the senate to refuse to confirm anybody to succeed Mr. Holder as chairman of the highway board, when the late Mr. McCrory of Ellaville was endeavoring to put through his schoolbook bill. He did nothing whatever about it when he had the power to do it. He only wishes you now that he will do something in the future."

"Mr. Russell was speaker of the house of representatives, with the power of appointing committees in the house and of directing legislation pretty much as he pleased. Not only is he responsible for the present deficit in state's finances, but that he cast the vote that passed the iniquitous appropriations bill that created the deficit, but he must also accept responsibility for having done nothing whatever to bring the deficit down or to try to ascertain the truth of the schoolbook situation."

"Mr. Holder was speaker of the house for a number of years; he was a member of the legislature for a quarter of a century and if, in that time, he sponsored or actively supported legislation looking to relief from the 'schoolbook trust' it does not appear on the record. The 'schoolbook trust' has become a great ogre to my opponents since they left the legislature, where they could best fight it."

"I am not being financed by the schoolbook trust or by any other trust. I am being financed by myself and by men and women over the state who believe me honest enough to tell them the truth about conditions in Georgia and capable enough to give the leadership to the solution of our problems."

"I hope the time will come in Georgia in the near future when the state will be able to provide free textbooks for all those children who need them. In the present state of our finances it is ridiculous and absurd to make a promise to provide free schoolbooks, costing several million dollars, when we cannot pay the teachers the salaries we have been owing them for as long as two years."

LEASE OF AIR RIGHTS PROPOSED BY PERRY

James A. Perry, candidate for governor, in a statement issued last night declared that his proposal to pay the state debts in the form of long-term leases, no constitutional amendment required, of the air or overhead rights of the state's railroad terminal properties in Atlanta and the value of our non-railroad property in Chattanooga, Tenn., has been misrepresented.

The statement follows:
"If I have only advocated long-term leases of the air rights of the state-owned railroad terminal property in Atlanta and our non-railroad property in Chattanooga, after having definitely determined that this could be done without a constitutional amendment and without infringing in any way upon any law, I understand and perfectly that if any part of the state railroad property is sold that the proceeds of such sale must apply upon the bonded indebtedness of the state. But, at no time have I advocated such a sale."

"My plan is to make long-term leases on this property, just as I handled the financing of the cold storage warehouse now under construction on state property in Atlanta and which has added four million dollars to the value of that property. This is in addition to the six hundred thousand dollars increased valuation caused by the building of the new passenger depot in Atlanta. This plan has only been criticized by those who have not taken the time to investigate either its legality or practicability."

"Because of my position as chairman of the public service commission I have been in very close touch with all of the state railroad property and for nearly 30 years have made a close study of it. I know where the market for these leases can be found and I know their value. It is significant that no qualified attorney has said that my plan is not entirely legal or that it cannot be carried out simply by an act of the legislature and without waiting for a constitutional amendment."

"It must be remembered that my plan will not, in any way, call for the use of any funds already allocated for any purpose and will not tie up highway construction as proposed by Mr. Carswell."

"It will be noticed from Sunday's press that my four opponents modestly admit they have already carried 400 and odd counties among themselves, although we have 161 counties in the state. I sincerely believe the people will roll up an overwhelming majority in Wednesday's election to recover their government from politics and two-by-four politicians when they cast their vote for me."

RIVERS VICTORY SEEN BY CAMPAIGN LEADER

Grady Statement Optimistic
at Close of 5-Cornered Race.

The following statement was given out Sunday by Senator Grady Miller, campaign manager for E. D. Rivers, candidate for governor:

"The political atmosphere is full of claims, prophecies and optimism. If all the candidates for governor carry all the counties they claim, we will have to take in all of Alabama and a large slice of Florida and South Carolina. Thus far, on behalf of Senator Rivers, we have restrained ourselves with assuring our friends that we honestly believe Mr. Rivers' campaign is in a most satisfactory condition, and we have arrived at this conclusion after a very careful and conservative survey of the state, from the best information available.

"Long before Senator Rivers ever took the stump in the present campaign, there were tens of thousands of voters in north, south and middle Georgia who already were committed to the principles of his platform and who anxiously awaited the opportunity to demonstrate their complete confidence and faith in him, and in his ability and courage to lead the fight for the common people of Georgia; and in every county in Georgia long before this campaign ever opened, there was already a strong sentiment among the common people that Ed Rivers is the man to deliver the people of this state from the selfish grasp of illegal combines, mergers and special interests, and to wrest control of the highway department from the professional politicians and their pet contractors and machinery and material dealers.

"When the other candidates got out away from their comfortable offices in the cities and began to meet the people themselves, they found that Ed Rivers and his personal and loyal friends had been there before them, and when they began to meet this Rivers sentiment in every town and hamlet, they began with one accord to call each other names and to adopt Mr. Rivers' platform, in a vain endeavor to attract attention to themselves. Mr. Carswell called on the governor for rescue, and Mr. Holder hurried to his friends, Sam Tate and others, while contractors from South Carolina moved into Georgia and began to promise roads for Mr. Holder.

"But they have been unable to stem the tide for Rivers. It had too good a start. Two years ago it rolled up nearly a hundred thousand votes. We don't know how many counties we will carry, for the Rivers campaign is just reaching its peak, and the past few days have brought news of one county after another that were considered doubtful two weeks ago that are now in the Rivers column. Certainly, if there has to be a run-over primary Mr. Rivers will be high man in the first race and will overwhelmingly defeat anybody anybody in a run-over. But we don't believe there will be a run-over. Of the thirty-three counties forming the extreme southern part of the state, Mr. Rivers seems certain to carry thirty-one; while in the eleven congressional districts, composed of twenty counties, we do not expect to lose a single county. In the twelve districts where Mr. Rivers did not carry a single county two years ago, we have every confidence that he will carry more than a majority of counties. In other sections of the state, north, south and middle Georgia, it is the same story. In the home congressional district of Holder, Perry and Russell, Mr. Rivers will carry as many counties as any other one candidate, while in middle Georgia he will carry far more counties than Mr. Carswell, and, in fact, without having written a letter or gone into the county, he will carry three of the districts in Mr. Carswell's home county.

"How many counties? We don't know. But, elected? Yes, without a doubt."

Speer Is Endorsed By Veteran Camp

Resolutions from United Confederate Veterans camps in north and south Georgia were received yesterday at the headquarters of State Treasurer Speer, strongly endorsing his record and appealing to the voters to do the same.

A statement as follows was issued: "One of the camps said: 'We unite in declaring that the record of Captain W. J. Speer as state treasurer has been so clean in character and shown such competency of administration as to entitle him to the continued confidence and support of the voters of the state that he has served so long and so honorably.'

"Another camp sent in the unanimous resolution that: 'We, as fellow veterans of Captain W. J. Speer, state treasurer, feel that our fellow-citizens will not consent to displace so able and trusted a public officer at a time when his long experience in state finances is more than ever needed. We appeal to the voters to support our old and worthy comrade by giving him their ballots for renomination in the approaching primary.'

"These evidences of support from those with whom he fought in war and who have fought for him in peace are highly gratifying to Captain Speer and his friends."

VICTORY IS PREDICTED BY R. B. RUSSELL, JR.

Gubernatorial Candidate
Promises "Administration" of Harmony and Accord.

Offering citizens an "administration of harmony and accord," and predicting his victory in the Wednesday primary, Richard B. Russell, Jr., candidate for governor, issued the following statement Sunday:

"The factional folks are frantic as they reach the end of the campaign and face the realization that the people of Georgia intend to have a change from factional rule and its damaging consequences, and are determined to secure an administration of harmony and accord by electing me governor.

"Consider developments of the week-end just passed.

"The major factional leaders, who were picked to be run this time, both knowing that either of them would be easily defeated in a run-over against me, vainly seek in the statements issued by their high-pressure managers to confine the fight among themselves. Mr. Rivers now seeks to attempt to escape the taint of factionalism with which he is affected and says he is free from factional connections. At this late date he joins me in my indictment of the present system under which our government has been in the hands of a small group.

"His words ring hollow when everybody knows he was the engineer of the Holder faction in 1927, when, true to factional custom, the unsuccessful group used its strength to block the winner. They further know that he was in the senate who put the 'Hold' in Holder when he trampled under foot the principles of democratic government and held on to the chairmanship of the highway board long after his term expired. It has never been denied that he was the unsuccessful candidate of that faction in 1928, and the memory of the people will not permit him to erase, as he and Mr. Holder would like to do, the fact that they are connected with the same bunch and are guilty of the same obstructive tactics.

FOUR PERSONS INJURED IN TWO AUTO CRASHES

Three Cases of Reckless Driving Result From Sunday
Mishaps.

Four persons were injured and three cases of reckless driving made by police Sunday as the result of two automobile accidents.

Tom Denton, of a Fifth street address, was cut about the head and face Sunday morning when the car in which he was riding and driven by W. E. Harris, of 547 Sunset avenue, collided with another driven by George Vance, of 1367 North View drive, at the intersection of Williams and Fifth streets.

Both cars were overturned and badly wrecked. Call Officers H. A. Hardy and Charlie Maddox docketed cases of reckless driving against both drivers.

R. F. Perkins, 21, of R. F. D. 5, suffered four fractures of his left arm and cuts about the head and face while Wade Manos, 20, of Inman yards, was slightly injured in an automobile crash on Marietta street near Kennan avenue. Joseph Moore, colored, of 1196 Avenue P, N. W., Rockdale Park, is alleged to have been driving the car which struck Perkins' machine. He is alleged to have left the scene of the accident but later was arrested at his home and charged with reckless driving.

According to witnesses, he was speeding on Marietta street and in an effort to round a curve was thrown to the wrong side of the street, striking the Perkins machine head on. Moore was slightly injured and Perkins was admitted to Grady hospital for treatment.

Back Broken in Crash,
Man Is Brought Here

His back broken Friday night in an automobile accident near Copper Hill, Tenn., Ewell Henry, 25, of 671 East avenue, was brought to Grady hospital here Sunday.

Friends of the injured man told Patrolman J. J. Spradlin that Ewell was hurt when the machine he was driving left the road and was wrecked when he became blinded by the lights of another auto. He had been under the care of a physician in the Tennessee town until Sunday.

Escaped Convict Is Arrested Here

Roy McCullough, 21, known in police circles as "The Candy Kid" was arrested on Earl street Sunday morning and held awaiting the arrival of officers from Rabun county, to escort him back to the county chain-gang from which he effected his escape about a week ago.

He escaped after serving 14 months of a five-year sentence for assault with intent to murder, a charge on which he was convicted in Fulton county. He was arrested by City Detectives W. B. Martin, J. L. Allen, J. A. Hamilton and Deputy Sheriff Joe Schillings.

Belated Rains To Fall Today, Forecast Says

Atlanta school children may have to start off the fall term today by donning their raincoats and remembering their rubbers and umbrellas.

Although the forecast of rain failed to materialize during Sunday, there was a threat of showers, with the morning changing from partly cloudy to bright, sunny weather, and it is the opinion of the weather bureau that the promised precipitation may arrive a day late.

The temperature range Sunday was from 70 to 90 degrees.

powerful figure humbly apologized for remaining hatted.

When convinced by the army officers that the success of the revolt necessitated his resignation, Irigoyen asked for paper and with his own hand wrote the document which ended one of the most remarkable political careers in history.

Then he was told that because of his resignation and the state of his health he was no longer a prisoner. On advice of his physician he remained in the barracks, where he was permitted full freedom of action, but was closely guarded, ostensibly to prevent violence against him.

Persons who have seen the former president since last night describe his attitude as that of a sick man who is indifferent to all about him. In his political reign he seldom took the advice of any colleague, but now he does as told and accepts his fate without visible emotion.

Irigoyen is not expected to survive long. The intense shock brought on by the revolution, preceded the day before by the action of his ministers in forcing him to renounce the presidential powers in favor of the vice president, will be too much for him, in the opinion of friends.

Tonight he was sufficiently recovered from the fever of last night to arise, and he abstractedly paced the corridors of the barracks.

No one ventured to predict his future if he lived. Popular animosity, although abated since yesterday, prevents his return to Buenos Aires, and the state of his health is likely to prevent a lengthy journey to foreign parts.

The people of Buenos Aires were still jubilant today over the change in government and are expecting another round of manifestations tomorrow. The government today decreed that tomorrow should be a national holiday in order that the citizens may witness the members of the new government take the oath before General Jose Estro Urriburu, provisional president.

SHERLOCK HOLMES—"Silver Blaze"

The Lame Sheep.

By SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE

Silas Brown sulkily accompanied Holmes through the gate of the Mapleton stables. What ever Holmes had whispered to the old horse trainer when the latter had retorted "Liel", he followed my friend's suggestion that they discuss the matter in Brown's parlor. "I shall only be a few minutes, Watson," Holmes said.

It was twenty minutes before Holmes and the trainer reappeared. Never have I seen such a change in a man as had been brought about in Silas Brown. His bullying manner was all gone, and he cringed along at Holmes' side like a dog with its master. "Your instructions shall be done. It shall all be done," he whined.

"There must be no mistake," said Holmes, and the other winced as he saw the menace in his eyes. "Oh no, it shall be there. Shall I change it first, or not?" Holmes thought a little and burst out laughing. "No, don't," he replied. "I'll write you. No tricks, now..."

On the way to the house Holmes stopped by the paddock where there were a few sheep. He asked a stable-boy: "Have you noticed anything amiss with your sheep of late?" "Only that three of them have gone lame, sir." "A long shot, Watson!" Holmes exclaimed gleefully. "I shall call the Inspector's attention to the singular epidemic among the sheep."

automobile license tags from the highway department in 1931 to the payment of appropriations due the state school system, the Confederate veterans' pensions and other much-needed disbursements for which the state is already obligated.

The four other candidates, however, disagree sharply with the idea as described by Carswell. Holder contending that diversion of such a sum from the road department would cripple its activities and that, at any event, the Carswell plan could not result in any immediate amelioration of other state debts, inasmuch as the highway department already has committed itself irrevocably to a large extent in the matter of contracts.

Perry, dealing with the question of state debts, advocates a substitute arrangement whereby lease of certain air rights of state-owned property in Atlanta and Chastanoga would, he avers, bring more than enough to pay the past-due appropriations to the various departments and institutions.

Russell's plan embraces the inauguration of a rigid economy in state departments, as does that of Rivers, as the solution for raising necessary funds with which to discount all outstanding obligations of the state, and holds that Carswell's plan would be

"damaging" to the highway department in its program of expansion.
Legislative Post.
Fulton county's interest as the campaigns of its candidates drew near a close over the week-end centers largely in the legislative post contests and those for election of a superior court judge as represented in the bench now held by Judge John D. Humphries, seeking renomination against James K. Jordan, local attorney. Judge Edgar E. Pomeroy, another superior justice, finds himself unopposed. In the races for seats in the legislature from Fulton, William G. McRae, attorney, is running for the seat held by Miss Bessie Kempton, retiring, and is opposed by Jesse B. Simmons and Johnny J. Jones. Four are battling

PESTILENCE FEARED
IN SANTO DOMINGO
Throughout the county at various points, and approximately 50,000 citizens are eligible to vote, it was estimated.

Estimates of the material damage, rising steadily, were placed at $25,000,000 today, nearly double the earlier estimates. It was believed this figure would go higher.
The death toll mounted into the thousands as bodies were found. Conservative estimates placed the dead at more than 2,000, while the injured totaled about 7,000 persons.
The hospitals were filled. Military tents dotted the torn landscape. They were used as hospital and operating rooms. The homeless were without shelter.

40,000 Families Homeless.
More than 40,000 families were estimated homeless in Santo Domingo and vicinity, worst hit by the great wind. The hurricane apparently struck the old city, lying squarely in its path, and affected but little of the rest of the country.
Reports from villages and rural districts only a few miles from Santo Domingo indicated they had escaped the storm.
Charles B. Curtis, the United States minister, requested the temporary assignment of Major Cary Crockett, aide to Governor Theodore Roosevelt, of Porto Rico to continue in Santo Domingo, in connection with the relief work. Governor Roosevelt, however, refused.
He said he could permit Crockett to remain another week, but that his return to San Juan then was imperative. He suggested Enrique Ortega, Porto Rican engineer, be placed in charge of the relief organization.
The steamship Catherine has arrived with relief supplies. Major Crockett sent a wireless to La Romana for two motor boats to assist other ships coming into the port. They have had difficulty in overcoming a swift current in the Ozama river, delaying the arrival of precious medicines and rations.
The steamer Midas is due, bringing 11 electrical experts with tools, medical supplies and clothing.
Adriano Gonzales, Porto Rican engineer, has been placed in charge of reconstructing the Duarte bridge over the Ozama. Work was ordered begun immediately. Gonzales also undertook to restore the water system, and began effecting repairs on the central main.
The Santo Domingo government, meanwhile, is seeking to ameliorate the suffering of the homeless. Reconstruction plans will be considered as rapidly as possible, and appropriations made for new structures. Less than 400 buildings out of the original 10,000 were left standing by the terrific force of the wind.

CAPITAL CROWDS
HAIL FRENCHMEN

dent's secretary to convey in turn the fliers warmest greetings.
The military handled the crowd well, although at times it appeared it would get out of control. There was little hesitancy in roughly pushing back the more forward ones and even Prince De Ligne, the Belgian ambassador, was jostled.
The crowd became more turbulent and demonstrative as the fliers paused briefly for the talking pictures.
Followed by Planes.
Six navy planes in V formation, after meeting the Question Mark at Baltimore, came in behind the French fliers and circled over the White House and the capital in Washington before the landing here was made.
Time of the 250-mile journey was three hours and 11 minutes. They came slowly over a distance their fast ship could have made in less than two hours, in order not to disarrange the schedule for their reception at the field at 5 p. m.
Cloudy flying weather marked the last half of their journey, from Wilmington, Del. south.
It was not Coste's first appearance here, for he stopped in Washington two years ago on returning from the good-will flight which he and Lebriz made from South America after their crossing of the South Atlantic. On that occasion Bolling field was deep in mud and as observers waited for the fliers this afternoon, gray skies above gave indications that rain might mar the Coste reception.

Johnny J. Jones

Candidate for the Legislature to Succeed Miss Kempton

If elected, I will not repeal the Workmen's Compensation Law but will amend it; I will fight for the removal of public school system from politics; free school boys for immediate payment of school teachers' salaries and Confederate pensions; repeal law consolidating City and County school system and occupation tax on insurance and real estate agents; will fight for election of municipal judges and clerk City of Atlanta by popular vote; abolition of rates for street cars and abolish gas and electric meter charges now costing citizens of Atlanta and Fulton County $1,000,000 annually; a general reduction and equalization of taxes, friendly and more satisfactory relation between capital and labor, and other necessary reforms. Your vote and influence on September 10th will be appreciated.

"Don't Hear Slaton"
Is Frantic Cry
Of Harris

In a frenzied effort to prevent Georgians from hearing Governor Slaton present his candidacy for the Senate, the Campaign Headquarters of Senator Harris last week resorted to letters appealing to voters not to attend Slaton speakings.

A specimen of them, signed by Hon. N. F. Culpepper, Manager of the Harris Campaign, and sent to a prominent citizen of Meriwether county, appears below. (If Mr. Culpepper questions its authenticity, we will produce the original, bearing his signature.)

Mr. Culpepper occupies the tragic predicament in this contest of managing the campaign of a candidate who cannot debate in the Senate, cannot debate his opponent on the stump, cannot speak to an audience when he has a platform all to himself, and cannot even sit down in front of a microphone, in a closed, sound-proof room, and read a radio address written for him—without having a prompter at his elbow to give him directions.

That explains why Mr. Culpepper is driven to greater lengths than any Campaign Manager in a contest of this importance has ever been driven in our recollection—the necessity of withdrawing his own candidate from the stump, concealing him from public view and contact, and then frantically canvassing the speaking territory of his opponent with letters appealing to voters NOT TO HEAR HIS OPPONENT!

In connection with Mr. Culpepper's letters, it is interesting to note that on the very day when the letter below was delivered, Senator Harris sat down in front of the microphone at Station WSB in Atlanta, (with his faithful prompter at his elbow), and solemnly asserted that Governor Slaton has "paid people fifty cents a head, all over Georgia, to come out and hear him."

Unable to speak himself, and unable to prevent citizens from hearing his opponent, Senator Harris stoops to accusing citizens of accepting a cheap hand-out to attend his opponent's speakings.

AND IN THE FACE OF SUCH TACTICS AS THESE, THE HARRIS HEADQUARTERS HAS THE BRAZEN EFFRONTERY TO CHARGE THAT GOVERNOR SLATON HAS "CONDUCTED HIS CAMPAIGN ON A DISGUSTINGLY LOW PLANE!"

It is a sad commentary on Georgia politics that an individual so weak, so puerile, so utterly devoid of any element of REAL LEADERSHIP, as Senator Harris has proven himself in this contest, should be seriously considered for THE UNITED STATES SENATE—much less that he should have the impudence to cast a slur upon every man and woman who has gone out to listen to his opponent.

More than fifty thousand Georgians, deeply interested in electing a Senator to represent them in the highest deliberative forum in the world, have heard Governor Slaton. Senator Harris over the radio, with his voice being heard far beyond the borders of Georgia, tagged them as nothing better than fifty-cent hirelings. Their answer to his insult will be recorded at the ballot boxes of Georgia next Wednesday. It will be very much better than any answer we might make!

The reason why Mr. Culpepper has exerted himself so strenuously to prevent citizens from hearing Governor Slaton is perfectly plain. THE REASON IS THAT GOVERNOR SLATON'S SPEECHES HAVE BEEN TREMENDOUSLY EFFECTIVE IN WINNING SUPPORT.

The letter of Mr. Culpepper, above referred to, is as follows:

"You have doubtless noticed that Governor Slaton is advertised to speak at Greenville next Friday. I conferred with some of our friends and the general opinion seems to be that it would be best if friends of Senator Harris do not attend the speaking on that date. In other words let it be strictly a Slaton meeting as far as possible, in order to show up the weakness of his case among the voters of Meriwether County. And if his audience turns out to be very small, as is confidently predicted, it will discourage Governor Slaton and his followers to the extent that they will make no further effort to carry Meriwether County.

"If the Harris supporters should go to the meeting, we think it might be construed to mean that they are interested in Governor Slaton, and that his supporters will no doubt claim that all who attend the meeting are for Slaton, and if he should have a small crowd, it will indicate that they will continue flat in Meriwether County. If the meeting is a 'flop,' everything will be over in Meriwether. While I do not feel at all alarmed, I would like to see the meeting demonstrate the fact that Slaton has practically no following in Meriwether, which will be the case if ONLY his supporters attend the meeting.

"If you agree with us in this, you might pass the word around among our friends as to what they think to be the best policy. The outlook is good everywhere, and there is not the slightest doubt that Senator Harris will be overwhelmingly elected and that Slaton will simply be slaughtered in the primary on the tenth."

HEWLETT A. HALL,
Campaign Manager, John M. Slaton.

The Ford Truck hauls costs down

IN HAULING supplies on contract, where schedules must be met—or bettered—the Ford 1½-ton truck is prompt and reliable. For this, and for numberless other types of service, the Ford truck offers an additional haulage value, which is economy. It is low in first cost, and low in cost of maintenance.

The way in which fine materials have been incorporated into parts of simple and rugged design is one of the features which increase the ability of the Ford truck to move a load from here to there at a minimum of effort and expense.

Forty different kinds of steel are used, for example. There is no thought, in making the Ford truck, that one or two—or a dozen—kinds of steel will have to serve, if a larger number will give added strength, longer life, or greater reliability.

Ford policy has always been to use the best possible material for each part, and then, through large-scale production, to give it to the public at low cost.

Other features of value are the new spiral bevel gear rear axle; the option of two gear-ratios; 4-speed transmission; provision for power take-off mounting; larger brakes; heavier front axle and spring; dual rear wheels, available at small additional cost; and a chassis of 157-inch wheelbase, for carrying light but bulky loads.

Standard bodies are the platform, stake, panel, and hand and power-operated dump types. Both open and enclosed cabs can be provided. All are equipped with Triplex shatter-proof windshields—an additional safety feature. Go to your Ford dealer and see how well this truck can serve your hauling needs.

SOUTH GEORGIA POSSESSES TWO MAN-HUNTS

Negro Accused of Attacking Woman; Another Sought for Stabbing Farmer.

MACON, Ga., Sept. 7.—(AP)—Man hunts were still in progress Sunday night in two south Georgia communities for negroes who were accused of crimes.

Poses from Dodge and Telfair counties were on the trail of a negro who Saturday morning attacked the 15-year-old wife of a young farmer residing near Milan in Dodge county. The young woman arose just before dawn, her husband being ill in bed, and as she went to the wood-yard for kindling to start the fire, she was attacked by a negro, choked, assaulted and left nearly unconscious. She is still under the care of physicians, it is stated.

Several negroes have been rounded up in connection with this case, according to reports, but the victim has declared in each case that the ones taken into custody did not attack her. She insists that she can identify the negro.

At Bazley county officers were hunting Roscoe Nelson, a negro preacher, who on Saturday night stabbed Arroy Gerald, 24, farmer residing on the plantation of Mrs. John Graham.

The white man brushed against the negro on the streets of Bazley. The negro resented this, it is said, and after words were exchanged the preacher is said to have drawn a knife and thrust it into Mr. Gerald's body. The blade struck his heart and lung. Mr. Gerald was taken to a hospital in Waycross Saturday night and reports from there tonight were to the effect that he had a chance to recover. An emergency operation was performed on him at 11 o'clock Saturday night, but the stabbing, in an effort to save his life.

Bazley was considerably excited during Saturday night and a posse of 300 men began a hunt for the negro preacher. The people calmed down today, however, when it was found that Mr. Gerald has a chance to recover, and officers alone were continuing the hunt.

SAVANNAH SEEKS METHODIST MEETING

SAVANNAH, Ga., Sept. 7.—(AP)—The Rev. Silas Johnson, presiding elder of the Savannah Methodist conference, has invited Bishop John M. Moore, of Atlanta, to a cabinet conference of presiding elders of the South Georgia conference, to hold their meeting here on September 17.

The meeting was originally planned for Macon, but in order to familiarize the elders of the conference with the proposed Methodist hospital plans in Savannah, Mr. Johnson is trying to have the meeting changed to this city in order to be able to better to pass on the project and discuss it more intelligently. He expects to hear favorably from Bishop Moore this week.

SAVANNAH SCHOOLS TO OPEN THURSDAY

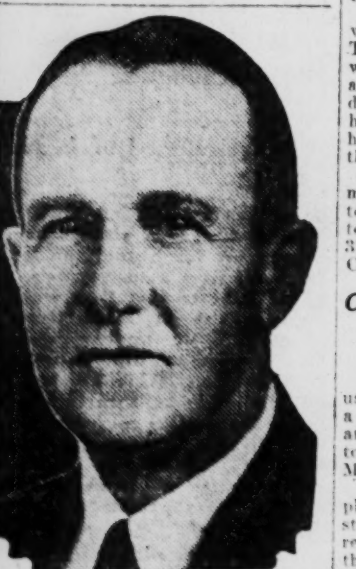

SAVANNAH, Ga., Sept. 7.—(AP)—Registration in local public schools begins here on Thursday and continues through Friday.

School district lines have been changed somewhat this year, particularly in the junior high schools, and also because of the new Forty-ninth Street school. Superintendent O. B. Strong expects one of the largest enrollments. All faculty members have been chosen.

SUPT. INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL TELLS OF SPLENDID RESULTS

Benefits From New Sargon Proved Revelation To Him, Says Harper.

"Sargon has been of so much benefit to me, building up both my strength and health, that it is a pleasure for me to state publicly what I think of this wonderful medicine."

THOMAS E. HARPER.

recently stated Thomas E. Harper, 1704 Jonesboro Road, Atlanta, who is a Mason and superintendent of the Fulton County Industrial School Farm (White Division).

"Four months ago I became so sluggish and rundown from the toxic effects of constipation that I 'carried on' only by force of will. Frequent, raging headaches handicapped me at work; I had no desire for food; my losing weight, and felt like all my strength had left me.

"Inside of ten days after I started Sargon I was eating heartily, and my whole system was in good shape. I gained five pounds before I finished the second bottle, and the new feeling of strength and energy was a revelation to me.

"Sargon Pills were different from any other laxative I ever used. They re-established a healthy, normal condition of my bowels, and rid me of those terrific headaches. The way I feel the most I could say would not be too much for this splendid Sargon treatment."

The Sargon Man at Jacobs' Main Store, 47 N. Broad St., Grant Bldg., is meeting the public daily and telling just what this revolutionary new medicine means to weak, sick, debilitated men and women. Sargon may be obtained at all Jacobs' Drug Stores throughout Atlanta.—(Advt.)

Engineer Saves Life By Diving Through Cab

MACON, Ga., Sept. 7.—(AP)—Fred Farley, locomotive engineer, dived through the window of his cab on a Southern railway locomotive in the south yards here Sunday afternoon when the engine was turning over. He escaped with a wrenched knee and ankle.

Robert Johnson, negro fireman, did not have time to jump and he was not seriously injured.

Southern railway officials investigating the accident expressed the belief that a broken rail caused the accident. The crew was engaged in making up a freight train.

FEDERAL AUTHORITIES PROBE SALE OF BABY

MACON, Ga., September 7.—(AP)—The shocking charges of selling his baby for $15 and luring a young wife into a degrading trade rested Sunday on the shoulders of Jimmie Langford, of Orlando, Fla.

Federal officers investigating, and said they hope to charge him with violation of the Mann act, which covers such cases even though the principal is a woman.

Langford is in jail here. He faces 161 days imprisonment on charges of disorderly conduct and drunkenness. The municipal court that tried him yesterday ordered him held to the grand jury on charges of wife beating.

His young wife and their baby were en route to her mother in Orlando, Fla., when they were arrested. Langford and his wife were arrested in a house here by the vice squad. The matron of the establishment said she had seen the couple in the past and was sure they were the same.

A written transaction—a bill of sale for the child—was made, she said. The purchaser of the baby hesitated to surrender him, and showed her bill of sale. She relented, however, and he was returned to his mother.

BRANTLEY COUNTY WINS STOCK JUDGING PRIZE

WAYCROSS, Ga., Sept. 7.—Brantley county has been declared winner in the annual Savannah district stock judging contest held in Waycross with Jenkins county second, Wayne county third, Tompkins county fourth, Ware county fifth and Bulloch county sixth. Others of the 15 counties participating were Telfair, Liberty, Brantley, Echols, Charlton, Cook, Lowndes, Clinch, Appling, Wheeler, Berrien, Jeff Davis and Lanier.

The highest individual scorer was Barney Strickland, of Brantley county, who made a total of 711 points out of a possible 800. Jethro Duncan, of Wayne county, was second with 657 points, and Raleigh Crews, of Charlton county, was third with 625 points.

L. V. Cawley, county agent of Brantley, the winning county, will carry his team to the Mid-South Fair this fall, the team to represent the entire state of Georgia in the livestock judging events. Members of the team are Barney Strickland, Ernest Purdom and Avery Strickland.

POLITICAL RALLIES SET FOR SAVANNAH

SAVANNAH, Ga., Sept. 7.—(AP)—Only two more political rallies for Savannah are arranged before the primary election on Wednesday.

John M. Slaton, candidate for the senate, will address the public here tomorrow night. John N. Holder, gubernatorial candidate, speaks here Tuesday.

Savannah, outside of the flock of candidates for state offices, will go to the polls with only one local interest, that between Judge B. B. Heery, associate judge of municipal court, incumbent, and J. C. Hester, young lawyer seeking that office.

The campaign for municipal offices in Savannah has been kept quite to date because of the interest in the state contests, but rumblings of considerable opposition in local matters are heard. At present there seems every indication that there will be a city fight for mayor and aldermen. There has not been any for several terms.

VALDOSTA STUDENTS TO REGISTER TUESDAY

VALDOSTA, Ga., Sept. 7.—Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, school children of the city will register for the coming fall term of the public schools.

The Central Avenue Grammar school will be used for registration. On Tuesday, first, second and third grades will register; Wednesday, the fourth and fifth grades will register; Thursday will be given over to the junior high school pupils, and Friday the high school students will sign up for the season.

Children residing more than three miles from the city will be required to make special arrangements for entering the public schools for the 1930-31 term, it is announced by Dr. A. G. Cleveland, superintendent of schools.

COTTON MILLS OPEN IN REMERTON TODAY

VALDOSTA, Ga., Sept. 7.—Unusual interest was created in Remerton, Valdosta suburb, by the week-end announcement that the Strickland Cotton Mills would commence operating Monday with a double shift.

In giving notice for additional employees the management of the mills stated that the volume of business had recently increased to the point where the single shift could not meet the demand. It was also stated that the night force which is to be added will be given steady employment until the end of the year, if not longer.

The mills have been running steadily on full time with its day crew, and the increase in business will give employment to a considerable number of new workers, adding to the weekly pay roll in the Valdosta vicinity.

Attend Spring Convention. THOMASVILLE, Ga., Sept. 7.—Several people from this county went to Mount Pleasant schoolhouse, in the neighboring county of Deatur, Sunday, to attend a singing convention.

The meeting was a regular gathering of the members of the Deatur County Singing Association, and several noted singers from Tennessee were on the program. A dinner was spread at noon in the grounds around the school building.

Will Enter G. S. C. THOMASVILLE, Ga., Sept. 7.—Thomasville is sending a big delegation of young women to Milledgeville to enter the Georgia State College for Women, for the 1930-31 school year. There are 13 of them, and they are indifferent to superstitions about the number 13. (How many will come from here are Misses Martha McGraw, Betty Watt, Evelyn Turner, LeClair Wimberly, Mary Price, Louise Swift, Sarah Arnold, Fern Ransom, Edith Chastain, Dorothy Holland, Dorothy Kinnington, Edie Mims and Evaline Mims.)

CREDIT BANK SEEKS CHARTER IN SAVANNAH

Company Will Be Third Agricultural Corporation in State.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Sept. 7.—(AP)—Application for a charter will be filed in Superior court here this week for the Georgia-Carolina Agricultural Credit Corporation with a capital of $100,000.

This will make the third credit bank of its kind to operate in Georgia, one now being in Atlanta and the second in Macon.

Officers of the bank will be Herschel V. Jenkins, president of the Morning News and of the Morris Plan Bank of Savannah, who will be president of the new bank; John L. Cope, vice president; E. B. McCuen, treasurer, and George L. Williams, executive manager and secretary. Mr. Williams has heretofore been connected with the federal land bank in Columbia, S. C., as assistant treasurer. Formerly he was a resident of Metter, mayor of that town, and largely interested in banking and agricultural affairs. The directors include the officers and J. L. Rountree, the headquarters of the credit bank will be here and the depository will be the Citizens and Southern National Bank.

The Georgia-Carolina Agricultural Credit Corporation will embrace such territory in south Georgia as may be desired by the directors, and will operate within a radius as distant as Dublin, as an instance. Already it has been approved by the following counties for territory: Jenkins, Emanuel, Bulloch, Tattnall, Screven, Evans, Toombs, Treutlen, Montgomery, Appling and Wayne.

South Carolina counties may also be eligible to participate. Loan committees will be appointed for each county. Under the plan, the credit banks are authorized to loan ten times their capital, thus giving this new corporation power to loan $1,000,000 to farmers in Georgia in preparation of crops, and like situations in farming.

The bank is under supervision of the United States treasury department and subject to examination by United States bank examiners.

Intermediate credit banks such as the one now forming here, are permanent institutions set up on the same principal as federal reserve banks with the exception that federal reserve banks function through commercial banks and have power of issue. Intermediate credit banks function through agricultural credit corporations, co-operative associations and banks. They have no power of issue, but money is made available by the government subscribing $500,000 capital stock and giving the credit banks power to issue debentures. At the present time there is available more than $500,000,000 which is increased automatically as new corporations are created, as federal banks have the authority to issue debentures to ten times the capital of the intermediate credit banks and corporations. These debentures are absorbed through well established channels and at the present time the rate of interest is second only to that of United States treasury certificates.

Joint Meeting Postponed.

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Sept. 7.—The Thomasville Kiwanis Club, which had planned to go to Tifton September 12 for a joint meeting with the Kiwanians of that town, has postponed the engagement.

SAVANNAH, Sept. 7.—Representative businessmen from every line in Berrien, Brooks, Cook and Lowndes counties will meet in Valdosta Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock to discuss a movement for the organization of an agricultural credit corporation.

Plans have been laid whereby this organization can be perfected if the business interests desire it, with the counties mentioned having a fund of from $400,000 to $800,000 available for financing farm loans at 6 per cent interest.

The plan, which is being adopted in many other agricultural sections, has been carefully studied and is said to be the most workable ever offered. Under the low rate of interest and the easy plan of repaying, careful business observers are of the opinion that farming can be placed on a substantial basis in this section within a very reasonable time.

A similar organization in Savannah is meeting with much favor and it is stated that those interested in this section have the privilege of joining the Savannah corporation, as a unit, or remaining entirely separate optional with the subscribers.

In recent weeks a preliminary canvass of the Valdosta territory has been made in the interest of the movement and the opportunity to provide an abundance of cheap money for financing crops is hailed as a business chance that will be of great benefit to stabilizing the farm as a genuine business enterprise.

TWO MACON NEGROES KILLED BY GUNSHOTS

MACON, Ga., Sept. 7.—(AP)—Two negroes were killed here early Sunday, one by a self-inflicted pistol wound from ear to ear and the other by a shotgun blast fired by another negro for whom police and deputies are searching. These two raised the total of violent deaths to four in the last six days.

Joe Walker, about 45, dressed and sitting upright in a chair in his house, was found dead about 7 a. m. A coroner's jury assembled later in the morning returned a verdict of suicide.

Mary Clay, negro, was shot during a scuffle with George Johnson, negro, at her house in the 100 block of Elbert street before dawn. Johnson gained access to the house by saying he had shot a man at Sofkee and was "in trouble." Sheriff's deputies investigating the case had no report of a shooting at Sofkee, and believed Johnson's statement was merely a ruse to get in the house.

Coroner Martin J. Thompson conducted an inquest into the negro's death and preferred a charge of murder against Johnson.

THOMAS COUNTY BOYS RETURN FROM CAMP

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Sept. 7.—Pat Ward, county farm agent, and G. C. Keenington, farmer, have just returned with 14 boys of the Thomas County 4-H Clubs, from Camp Wilkins, at Athens, where they spent the past week. The boys got special instruction in agriculture and live stock raising.

Those who attended the camp were Warren Jackson and Theron Hudson, of New Hope district; Ferguson Davis, of Thomasville; Charles Ward, Andrew Wurst and Winston Sasser, of Meigs; Leroy Smith, Leo White, and H. D. Lewis, of Ocklawaha; James Benton, of Ellabelle; William Applewhite, of Boston; James Bailey, James Benton and Grady Gardner, of Coudig.

State Deaths and Funerals

MRS. GRACE MENDES. SAVANNAH, Ga., Sept. 7.—Mrs. Grace Sarah Mendes, widow of the late Rabbi Isaac Mendes, for many years rabbi of Mikveh Israel temple here, died early Sunday morning at the age of 75 years. She was noted for her community work. Her husband was the first rabbi to be given an honorary degree by the University of Georgia, having been awarded both the degree of doctor of divinity and master of arts.

FUNERAL OF MRS. BOWERS. MEIGS, Ga., Sept. 7.—Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon for Mrs. Maria Russell Bowers, wife of J. A. Bowers, of Meigs, who died Friday night in a hospital in Bainbridge, Ga., following an operation for stomach trouble. Mrs. Bowers was 57 years of age, the daughter of the late Charles S. Russell and Mrs. Russell, of Thomasville. She was born in Orlando, Fla., and was a granddaughter of Judge James J. Willie, who resides at Olayda, Jefferson county, Florida. Besides her husband and her mother she is survived by a son, William Bowers, 15 years old; three grandchildren, Mrs. H. M. Williams, Jones Bowers and Cecil Bowers; two sisters, Mrs. Julian Harris, of Albany, Ga., and Mrs. Katherine Scott, of Birmingham, Ala.; a brother, James Russell, of Thomasville.

MRS. BERNICE SAXON. GREENSBORO, Ga., Sept. 7.—Mrs. Bernice Saxon, 20 years of age, daughter of Bob Clayton, head of one of the departments of the cotton mill here, died Saturday night. She was in the family hospital in Dublin after an operation for appendicitis. Burial was in the family burial grounds at Long Pond Sunday afternoon, conducted by her pastor, the Rev. L. S. Barrett.

MISS MIRRIAN RACKLEY. VALDOSTA, Ga., Sept. 7.—Miss Mirrian Rackley, 15-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Rackley, died Saturday night in a hospital in Dublin after an operation for appendicitis. Burial was in the family burial grounds at Long Pond Sunday afternoon, conducted by her pastor, the Rev. L. DICKERSON TO DECIDE WARE HOSPITAL ISSUE

Waycross Judge Hears Arguments on Injunction Regarding Site.

WAYCROSS, Ga., Sept. 7.—Judge M. D. Dickerson, of the Ware county superior court, has reserved decision as to whether or not the temporary injunction as to a site for the Ware county hospital will be made permanent. The decision probably will be announced within a week.

Judge Dickerson stated that he had no intention of granting any injunction against the sale of the hospital bonds but that he wished the commissioners to be free to sell these bonds whenever they thought best.

The reserved decision is solely as to the site. In a popular expression of choice the plurality ballot was for the King's Daughters site. Later the King's Daughters withdrew this site and the commissioners set the date for a second popular vote. A temporary injunction was granted against holding the second vote.

In the arguments Parker & Parker, counsel for the county commissioners, contended that the law vests the discretion as to the location of the hospital in the county commissioners acting in conjunction with the Ware County Medical Society; that the law will not permit the site to be selected otherwise, not even by a popular vote; that the popular vote ranked no higher than as information to be used by the commissioners in exercising their discretion; that the popular vote was not legally binding on the commissioners.

Kelley & Dickerson, counsel for the petitioners, contended that in the constitutional amendment providing for hospital bonds it was stated that the commissioners in conjunction with the medical society should fix the rules and regulations for acquiring the site; that in calling for a popular vote they had so fixed the rules and regulations and had exercised their discretion; that having once fixed the rules and regulations they must abide thereby and could not later use a different rule or regulation for selecting a site.

The addition of a new department, that of fine and applied arts, under the direction of Miss Martha Griffin, graduate of George Peabody Teachers college, has been announced by the college authorities.

Savannah Jews Protest Holding Passion Play

SAVANNAH, Ga., Sept. 7.—(AP)—Jewish citizens of Savannah, through a committee headed by Rabbi George Solomon, Alderman Albert Blumberg, and others, have protested to the Savannah Opera Association against the holding of a Passion Play in Savannah as contemplated.

A meeting of directors of the Opera Association will hear the protest tomorrow. The principal claim is that the portrayal of the character of Jesus would leave an unwholesome attitude toward the Jewish race. The committee also called on Mayor Saussey yesterday.

SIX PERSONS HURT AS AUTOS COLLIDE

Lawrenceville People Victims of Crash on Highway Near City.

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ga., Sept. 7.—Six people were badly hurt in an automobile collision at noon Sunday when two cars collided at the junction of North Clayton street and the Buford highway in north Lawrenceville.

A large open car, driven by Will Plunkett, occupied by his wife and two children, collided with a small roadster headed towards town and occupied by five men from Nacoochee valley, who were said to have been en route to Rome.

O. B. West, Jr., had his hips crushed; John Fuller, hips dislocated; Wilson, cut about the head and body; W. E. Hood and a man named Bristol suffered minor injuries. After emergency treatment at the Lawrenceville hospital, the injured were sent to the Gainesville hospital.

All of the occupants of the roadster were men about 25 years of age. Mr. Plunkett, driver of the large car, was not hurt. The five men from Nacoochee valley, who were said to have been en route to Rome, were not hurt.

Twenty-six Atlanta students are registered at the Rome college, the number almost equaling the Rome list, which numbers thirty-three. Newman ranks third with seven enrolled. The large majority of students are Georgia Jews. Fourteen students are represented on the register as follows: Georgia, Alabama, Florida, Illinois, Kentucky, Louisiana, Massachusetts, New York, North Carolina, Mississippi, South Carolina, Tennessee and Texas.

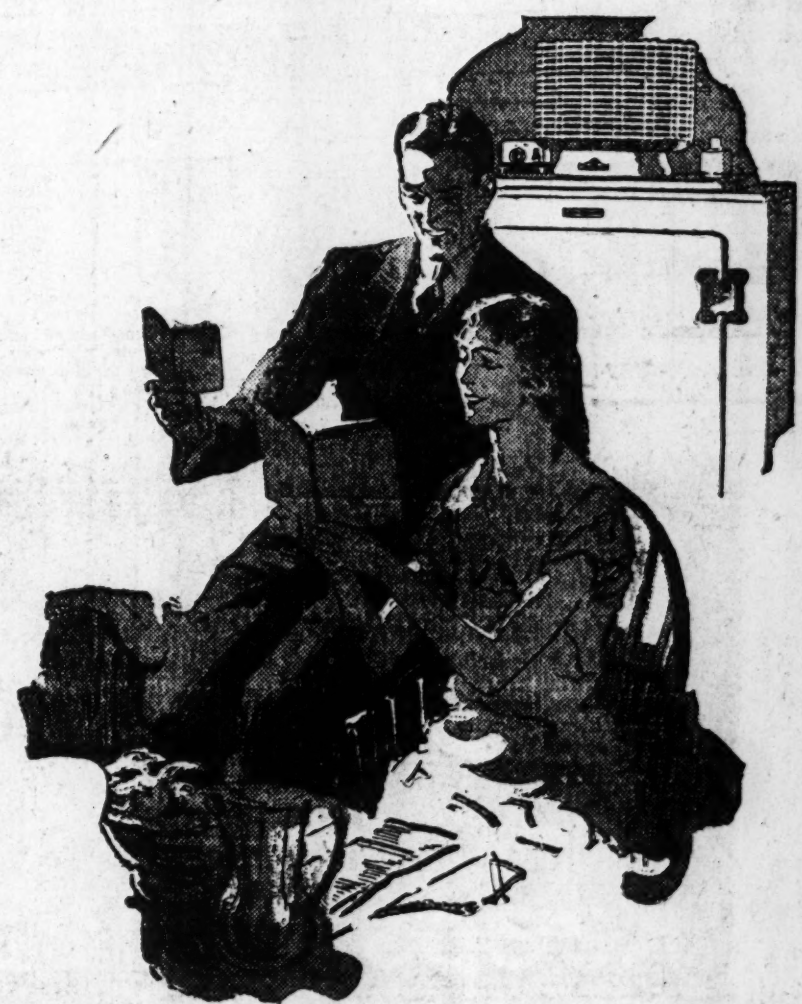

The addition of a new department, that of fine and applied arts, under the direction of Miss Martha Griffin, graduate of George Peabody Teachers college, has been announced by the college authorities.

THE FRANK JUROR--- Mr. Henslee

A statement by A. H. Henslee, one of the jurors in the trial of Leo M. Frank, attacking Governor Slaton for commuting Frank's sentence, was brought to Slaton campaign headquarters about three weeks ago.

The statement was read and considered and handed back to the person that brought it, with no comment except that it was immaterial to the Slaton headquarters whether Mr. Henslee published it or not.

The next day the statement was delivered to the press, and some of them published a brief summary of it in their news columns.

The statement in full is now appearing in newspapers as a paid advertisement, and we have reason to believe that Harris headquarters is defraying the expense.

Mr. J. J. Nunnally and Mr. W. L. Ricker, of Monroe; Mr. R. L. Gremer, of Albany; Mr. H. S. Gray, of Sparta; Mr. Leon Harrison and Mr. C. P. Stough, of Atlanta, as well as five or six other citizens, made affidavits which are in the court record in the Frank case, that Mr. Henslee expressed the opinion prior to Frank's trial that Frank was guilty and ought to be hanged, and further expressed the hope that he would be drawn on the jury, so that he could vote to hang him.

Mr. Henslee has been a candidate for one State House office or another in practically every primary since the Frank case was tried. His sole and only platform in each of his races has consisted of the fact that he was a member of the jury that convicted Frank.

In each of his races he has been overwhelmingly defeated.

2 STRIKERS WOUNDED IN SPANISH RIOTING

All San Sebastian Business Houses Closed as Truce Fails.

SAN SEBASTIAN, Spain, Sept. 7. (P)—Two strikers were wounded, one seriously, today when police fired into mobs of rioters on the streets here.

Efforts to negotiate a truce in the general strike declared last night failed completely, and all business houses in the city closed. The residents became panicky, and virtual martial law prevailed.

Mounted police and civil guards patrolled the streets. Many were arrested, and some of the prisoners' names were kept secret.

King Alfonso started here by automobile despite efforts to dissuade him. When told that a general strike had been declared here, and that he had best keep away, the king grinned at his advisers.

"Vamonos!" (Go away) he ordered. "I am scheduled to go to San Sebastian and I go to San Sebastian."

His gesture appealed even to his political enemies, who like his dash and spirit, quite aside from their political opinions. No Spaniard ever forgets that the king has often proved his cool nerve when attempts were made to assassinate him and on other occasions. No one was surprised when he dashed off in his own automobile, traveling at high speed in this direction. The king and royal family have been at Bilbao.

After the two men were wounded by police, opposition politicians threatened to make the general strike of indefinite length instead of the scheduled 24 hours. Many women mingled with the crowds milling in the streets. The cafes opened and taxicabs and trams started operations in the afternoon after being closed down in the morning. When the riot started, however, they closed down again and all business seemed paralyzed. A strike committee attempting negotiations with municipal authorities quit its efforts when the riot started. Observers said the situation tonight was uncertain, and contained an element of danger.

Photos Showing 82d in France To Be Displayed

Photographs of scenes in France, brought home by members of the Eighty-second division, as well as pictures made at Camp Gordon during the training period, are being displayed in the headquarters of the Eighty-second division reunion organization, 72 Broad street, N. W. Guns, helmets and other souvenirs of the Meuse-Argonne campaign also desired.

"All such articles for display during the reunion will be preserved carefully and returned to their owners. Photographs and other souvenirs should be marked with the names of the owners," stated Jack Cozine, former captain in the Eighty-second, who is in charge of the headquarters.

Prospects for a large attendance at the home-coming of the old Camp Gordon division are excellent, it was stated. The Atlanta members of the Eighty-second expect to have their hands full looking after the visitors, providing automobiles for them, and seeing that they are made welcome in true Atlanta fashion.

The most important meeting previous to the reunion will be held Thursday night on the roof of the Ansley hotel. Every man who was connected with the Eighty-second division at Camp Gordon or overseas is invited to attend the meeting and join in plans for making the reunion a success.

Slight Earth Shocks Terrify Melfians

MELFI, Italy, Sept. 7. (P)—A brief but sharp earthquake shock was felt here yesterday. Several buildings already damaged by the quake of July 23 were knocked down. Residents rushed to the streets in panic but no one was injured.

A shock, accompanied by rumblings, was felt at Rionero Friday night. There was no damage but the people, fearful of a catastrophe, spent the night outdoors.

At the Age Women Dread

"Three years ago I was in bed three months with a nervous breakdown. After that I had to lie down often. I have four children, the youngest 21, and I board two little school-girls. I try to keep my home as a mother should but I am at the age so many women dread. Since taking six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I feel 100% stronger. I am not so nervous and my appetite is better."—Mrs. Della Hutsell, 623 East 1st Street, Casper, Wyoming.

ICE

keeps Vegetables Fresh and Crisp

Dry cold and dry heat kill vegetables, robbing them of life-giving moisture.

In refrigerator car, in store and home, ICE keeps vegetables garden-fresh, crisp and tender, without loss of precious vitamins and mineral salts. Vegetables (fruits, too), composed largely of water, dry out quickly, wilt and become tough and unpalatable in temperatures either too high or too low.

Immediately upon delivery, vegetables and fruits should be placed in an ICE refrigerator where both temperature and humidity are just right for preserving their juicy succulence and delicate flavors.

Place hardy and odorous fruits and vegetables on the top shelf of the refrigerator, where the air current quickly drowns all odors on the ICE in the adjacent compartment.

For convenience, pack lettuce, celery, radishes and the like in a wide-mouthed covered jar or pan. Never put lettuce, celery—anything—on or beside the ICE. There it obstructs cold air circulation, which lowers the efficiency of your refrigerator. Direct contact with ICE browns lettuce and celery. Extreme cold is harmful. Vegetables and most fruits keep well at 52, 55—even 60 degrees Fahrenheit.

HEED THE WARNING

Every dangerous curve, every cross road, every railroad crossing along the highway is marked with a danger signal and only fools fail to observe them. But how much more important it is to protect yourself and loved ones against the results of travel accidents. Have you thought of that and have you made provision?

You fathers and mothers who love your families this advertisement is a warning to you. Just as you observe the danger signals along the highways so should you heed this warning and follow this advice before it is too late.

Travel accidents are on the increase. The train, the street car, the taxicab, the bus, the automobile, the steamship each daily add their toll. The killed and the injured mount into the thousands every year. Who knows, you may be a victim. What then?

Business Leaders To Greet McLeod at Luncheon Today

40 Prominent Executives Will Honor Head of National Association of Cost Accountants.

Dr. Stuart C. McLeod, head of the National Association of Cost Accountants, an organization composed of 6,500 accounting executives and with 36 chapters in large American cities, will be entertained today by 40 of Atlanta's business leaders at a luncheon to be served in his honor at 1 o'clock at the Capital City Club.

Dr. McLeod is in Atlanta officially to install a local chapter of the N. A. C. A., which was recently organized and which will begin active work in cost accounting immediately. The Atlanta branch was organized through the efforts of Ivan Allen, chairman

UNEMPLOYMENT ILLS FRET GERMAN PEOPLE

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Unemployment was called Germany's greatest economic problem by Dr. Robert Sommer, German under secretary of state, who arrived today on the liner Hamburg to study American industries and transportation systems. An important factor in Germany's unemployment he said, is the return of thousands of Germans to industrial centers of the country from Alsace, Lorraine and East Prussia, isolated by the Polish corridor. The only solution, he said, would be concentration of German industries on quality production, since American leads the world in mass production. To offset the country's increasing population and requirements, he said, German industries must enlarge their foreign markets. He expressed fears that the new American tariff would have a harmful effect on his country's industries, although he said it had not yet been felt. He said great concern was felt over the possible effect of the tariff because German exports alone are relied upon to pay the nation's reparation debt.

Holmes Institute Will Open Today

Holmes Institute will open at 10 o'clock this morning, with the largest registration for all departments in the history of the institution. President B. R. Holmes announced Sunday. The institute makes a specialty of training students who are not able financially to attend public schools or other institutions. All students are given a useful trade aside from the regular course.

HURRICANE EXPECTED TO END LONG DROUGHT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Charles L. Mitchell, weather forecaster, predicted today that the remnants of the destructive tropical hurricane coupled with an atmospheric disturbance developing west of the Rockies would break the drought which has affected many sections.

The meteorologist said the outlook was for a period of general showers the middle of the week in the north and middle Atlantic states, frequent showers in the south Atlantic states, and a period of general showers beginning about Tuesday in the Ohio valley and Tennessee.

He explained that in the rear of the hurricane remnant now near the Gulf of Mexico was a mass of moist, warm air, which is coming into the Gulf states. The cool disturbance west of the Rockies, he said, would pull the warm air from the southern regions and would combine with it to form general showers throughout drought-stricken sections.

"If the hurricane dwindles to almost nothing, as now seems likely," he said, "it will cause considerable rain without wind."

A rally of DeKalb county citizens will be held at the Decatur courthouse at 7:45 o'clock tonight to discuss "the present financial situation confronting DeKalb county," according to an announcement Sunday by Wheat Williams, of the DeKalb county citizens' committee.

James C. Davis and William Schley Howard will be the two principal speakers of the meeting, it was said.

"I'm paid a bonus if my point gets 11 okay—I pay a forfeit if it fails to earn them all!"

The Parker Point-Smith

Parker Point-Smiths are the aces of the pen industry. We pay them a cash Bonus for every Duofold Point. But first it must pass 11 merciless tests. If it fails in any one, we reject it and the point-maker pays us a forfeit.

The life of the Parker business depends on this pressureless writing Pen that is Guaranteed for Life.

So we limit the number a man may produce per day. This gives him time to make each point as good as his best. And 7 times out of 8, he does it, and wins a cash reward.

Pressureless Touch writing flatters your hand, for it ends the effort of writing. You only guide the point. Beautifully streamlined in rich colors—jade, lacquer, jet, iridescent pearl and lapis lazuli—Parker Pens hold 17.4% more ink than average, size for size. They are non-breakable.

Pen Guaranteed for Life

Parker Duofold Pens—and Pencils to match—are convertible. They give double-duty writing: in Pocket or in Desk Set. Pocket caps and tapered Desk Set tips are interchangeable. Ten seconds changes them.

Thus when you own a Parker Duofold you need only get a Desk Base to have a complete Desk Set. The same Pen serves both purposes. No other pen offers this convertibility, so why pay more for one that gives less?

See Parker Duofolds at any pen counter. Each has a bonus point. Each is Guaranteed for Life. Pens $5 to $10. Pencils $2.50 to $5. Desk Bases (with tapered-end, free) $3.75 and up.

'Apron Strings,' Smart Play Opens Tonight at Erlanger

The outstanding comedy success of the year in New York, "Apron Strings," will be presented to Atlanta theatergoers this week by the Erlanger Theater Players. Opening tonight at 8:30 o'clock, nightly performances of the sparkling play will be given, with bargain matinees on Wednesday and Saturday.

It is only by special permission from the owners of the copyright to "Apron Strings" that the Erlanger is enabled to present its patrons with this play while its New York run is still on. It has played all year to splendid business on Broadway and there is as yet no indication of any slackening at the box office.

The story of the play deals with a young man whose mother, before she died, left a collection of letters in which she has, according to her ideas, left careful instructions to help her boy through every conceivable situation he may meet in life. And the boy reads and believes everything in the letters.

Then he gets married and the ideas of the past generation, as given by a particularly narrow and prudish woman, don't fit the ideas of today, as interpreted through a startlingly modern, and delightful, young bride.

That is the basis of the plot. There are numerous delicious characters, particularly an old lawyer. This part was the sensation of the season in New York as interpreted by Jefferson D'Angelis. Tonight, at the Erlanger, it will be in the capable hands of Frank Joyner.

All members of the company have splendid roles, especially the two new leads, Marion Eburne-Hall and Thomas McQuillan. Art Director Albert Amend has created another altogether fitting stage setting and Director Harry McKee has drilled his company until they are not only letter perfect, but business perfect and with a tempo that carries the play through in delightful moving sparkle. It is, in every respect, one of those plays that seems to appeal most of all to Atlantans, utterly smart, but without any of the objectionable suggestiveness that New York usually relishes but that Atlanta does not care for.

There are excellent seats yet available at the box office for each of the eight performances of the week, while they may also be secured at Phillips and Crew Piano Company, on Peachtree, between Cain and Harris streets.

Ramon Novarro Stars Good Picture at Fox

"Call of the Flesh," with Ramon Novarro, Seaward and short subjects, Fox Grand orchestra, Enrico Leide, conducting. Dignity Brown at the organ. On the stage, "Suzanne" idea, Mel Buick and stage band. Feature starts at 2:21, 4:57, 7:33 and 10:00. Stage show starts at 1:40, 4:22, 6:58 and 9:34.

Ramon Novarro's voice shows great improvement in his newest picture which is this week to be at the Fox. Not that his voice ever was bad—it wasn't—but in the songs he sings while playing the principal role there is a quality of tone which his previous efforts lacked.

The story is a more or less loosely written tale of romance in which Novarro, as a young singer in a Spanish cabaret, becomes the repository for the world interest of a young convent novice, played by Dorothy Jordan. Novarro's introduction of her to life outside the walls of the church, is, to say the least, quaintly interesting, and the story moves along with

Resignation Planned By Panama Cabinet

PANAMA CITY, Sept. 7.—(AP)—It was reliably reported today that four members of the Panama cabinet intend to resign unless Jephtha B. Duncan, around whom a storm has been brewing for some time, quits his post as secretary of public instruction.

It was understood that those intending to resign are T. G. Duque, minister of finance; A. Robles, minister of the interior; J. D. Arosemena, foreign minister (a brother of President Florencio Arosemena), and L. F. Clement, minister of agriculture.

Observers say that the attitude of these cabinet members reflects the view of the nationalist assembly, which has protested to the president against Duncan appearing in the chamber to present his report. Duncan enjoys the confidence of the president, however, and has paid no attention to demands that he resign.

BURGESS CHILDREN'S STORIES

IMPY FALLS IN LOVE.

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.
In anger there is seldom gain.
But often not a little pain.
—Old Mother Nature.

Impy the black chipmunk didn't know what was the matter with him. Something was wrong, but he didn't know what. He lost his appetite. He had more dreams than usual; and, curiously enough, these dreams were all about Miss Frisky, the pretty little chipmunk whose acquaintance he had recently made. Impy would start out to get something to eat and the first thing he knew he would be looking for little Miss Frisky instead of for something to eat. Whenever he found her, he would be supremely happy. When he failed to find her, everything seemed wrong.

Now, little Miss Frisky was very shy. She was timid. Impy wasn't the least bit bashful, but little Miss Frisky was bashfulness itself. She never would let Impy come very near her. The instant he attempted to approach her, she would run away. Then Impy would fly into a terrible rage; that is, he would sometimes. He would become very, very angry. Other times he would be most forlorn and slowly go back home, looking as if he had lost his last friend.

Now, all such things have a meaning. Perhaps you know what that meaning is. In Impy's case it meant that he was in love with little Miss Frisky. He didn't know he was in love, but he was. If she came over near him and sat long enough to talk to him a few minutes, he was supremely happy. If she just flirted that pretty little tail of hers in a saucy manner and ran away, the day was spoiled for him. He looked for her the first thing in the morning and he looked for her the last thing before going to bed at night.

A great idea occurred to Impy. Yes, a great idea occurred to Impy. He would invite little Miss Frisky to see his new home, of which he was so proud. So the next time Miss Frisky had courage enough to let him talk to her, he invited her to come to visit his new home. "It's a very fine home," said Impy. "I don't believe you've ever seen a nicer one. I made it all myself. I had no help at all. It's got a bedroom and two storerooms; and I don't believe you ever would find the doorway. You see, it's beautifully hidden."

"Yes, I know it is," said little Miss Frisky. "It is very nicely hidden. I couldn't have hidden it better myself." Impy opened his eyes wide. "What do you know about it?" he demanded. "Oh, I found it long ago," replied little Miss Frisky in a most demure way.

The instant he attempted to approach she would run away.

You should have seen the look on Impy's face. "I don't believe it," said he.

Now, that wasn't at all polite on Impy's part. Little Miss Frisky looked offended. "I don't ask you to believe it," said she. "Facts are facts, whether you believe them or not. Those ferns over there could tell you whether or not I know where the entrance to your home is. I don't like people who don't believe what I tell them." With this she whirled and started away. Impy started after her. "Please don't go!" he begged. "Please don't!"

Little Miss Frisky didn't so much as turn her head. She ran as only she could run and she disappeared as only she could disappear. When she disappeared, it was just as if jolly, round, bright Mr. Sun had hidden behind the clouds, as far as Impy was concerned. All the joy had gone out of the day. You see, Impy was in love. He was very much in love. (Copyright, 1930, for The Constitution.)

Ann Harding at Best In Paramount Talkie

"Holiday," a talking picture drama starring Ann Harding. News reel and sound cartoon. On the stage, "Dancing Keys," with Lou Forbes and his orchestra, assisted by chorus and specialty entertainers.

May the gods who shape the hectic destinies of the cinematic world look with great good favor on Ann Harding and the chap (whose name it was our misfortune to miss) who directed "Holiday"! May they be with us for many seasons and, if it's not asking too much, may they work together as they do in "Holiday."

The stage show holds up the much improved standard of entertainment the Paramount has been giving us for some weeks past. Art Kahn, a pianist who ranks among the most popular ivory pounders of the day, easily holds his place as headliner, while a straight dancing team scores heavily. A burlesque dance is good, while the Paramount Rookies are as lovely as ever. And Lou Forbes and his orchestra, of course, contribute snappy melodies. While Adolph Goebel at the organ gets away nicely with a novelty number and there are some more of the excellent short subjects we have been taught to expect at this theater.

The story of "Holiday" is a simple affair and nothing to start any uproar. True, it was superior to the average script when it made its more or less innocent way to Hollywood but it might have emerged from that dizzy city as just another movie had it not had its great good fortune to fall into the hands of the redoubtable pair for whom the critical prayer is inscribed above.

But let's see what did happen. The principal role, that of a gentleman being revolting against the artificiality of "high society" (see, if you try hard, you can recall some such idea as this in other stories) is turned over to Miss Harding. An intelligent supporting cast is assembled and the director takes the whole affair in hand, capably keeps out all mawkish monkeyshines and lets Miss Harding take her course.

The result, from this writer's viewpoint, easily is the season's outstanding talker and while we haven't seen them all (thank heaven) we have, proceeded cautiously but earnestly, contrived to view the majority of the less offensive ones.

Let us repeat, the story is good (we won't bore you by reciting it), the direction virtually is flawless, the sound is satisfactory and Miss Harding is more superb than in any previous role and she is no beginner. If you demand or expect more than that you deserve no further consideration this side of the millennium.

The stage show, as said, isn't bad but we'll gladly trade it for another "Barnacle Bill, the Sailor."

Local Aviation Heads On Engineers' Program

Local aviation activities will be featured at the September meeting of the Georgia section of the American Society of Civil Engineers, to be held at 12:30 o'clock today at the Atlanta Athletic Club.

Several officials of Eastern Air Transport, Inc., at Candler field have been invited to make short talks outlining commercial and air mail activities. C. H. Dolan, assistant operations manager, will be the principal speaker and will introduce F. E. Gray, radio engineer, and W. R. Crippen, John K. Ottier, Jr., commercial representative, and Fred Schwaemmle, depot superintendent, who has recently returned from South America, also have been invited to speak.

J. A. Higgs, secretary and treasurer of the engineers, in announcing the meeting, stated that Professor Montgomery Knight, in charge of the new aeronautical school at Georgia Tech, also will talk briefly, outlining the proposed work of the new Guggenheim School of Aeronautics.

SON OF THE GODS

INSTALLMENT XXVII.

"I read in the Herald that you were here with your daughter," she began, when he finally allowed her an opportunity of stating her business.

"Yes. She's usually in the papers. She counts that day lost when she isn't."

"There have been several references to her engagement."

"Which one?" Wagner chuckled. "To Mr. Lee; Sam Lee. I happen to know him."

"Oh! Indeed?" The father found his interest directed along a new line. "Friend of yours, is he?"

"Yes. There was a pause. "It's true, then?"

"I'm, a little premature, possibly."

"You're probably wondering why I'm here, and—I hardly know, myself. Sam and I were at college together. It's through him that I came to Paris, to study. I mean it's—its all right in every way, but my people were unable to send me. They're not in sympathy with my ambitions, anyhow. Sam's father is rich—do you know why he's over here? Why he quit college?"

"I haven't the faintest idea."

"I think you ought to know. He was expelled."

"What for?"

"Over a girl. It was in the papers and you must have read it if you were in New York at the time."

"Possibly I did. I don't even remember what they said about me, but it was scandalous. I hope you didn't come here to tell me that Sam was a college cut-up. That's nothing against him."

"No. I didn't come here to tell you that, except as a part—"

"A part of what?"

"Well, I have some newspaper clippings. I thought—"

"Don't show them to me," Wagner said indifferently. "Now, let's understand each other. I'm a businessman and I talk plainly. I cut corners."

"What have you got on him?"

"Why—nothing. It isn't that. We were awfully good friends—He—well, he asked me to marry him. He did, really."

"I see. And you have his letters. Very well, I'll consider a proposition. My daughter has made up her mind and there's no stopping her. Those letters are worth a much more as a newspaper. What's the figure?"

The caller was both offended and indignant. Her eyes widened, her face grew white. "I'm no blackmailer," she protested. "You're insulting. I read in the papers that he was engaged to your daughter and about his winning a fortune at the Casino and being so popular and everything—"

"Western heiress to millions engaged to prominent young American." It made me laugh."

Wagner was eyeing Miss Hart with alert intensity now. "Yes. Well—make me laugh. What's funny about it?"

"I'll show you—" With shaking hands the speaker tipped open her purse, seized a bundle of folded clippings and tossed them into Wagner's lap. "There's your prominent young American, your future son-in-law. Maybe you know all about him and maybe you don't."

The man adjusted his glasses, unfolded the clippings, then his expression changed. He stared open-mouthed at what he saw; his hands began to tremble. "Lee Ying, wealthy Mott street merchant." "Palace of Imperial Bounties." "Scandal at Eastern University." There were pictures of a doll-faced girl and of Sam; sensational headlines; but Wagner did not read much of the story. He had no interest.

"My God!" he exclaimed. He shot a few searching questions at his caller, then he put the clippings in his pocket, rose and stepped about the room, perspiring profusely. After a while he paused and looked Miss Hart over from head to foot in a manner that caused her to flush and to pale.

"You say you were engaged to this Chinaman?"

"I said he asked me to marry him."

"Exactly. And he's paying your way in Paris. . . . Just why, may I ask, did you decide to come here—and give me this treat?"

"That's my business. I—imagined you'd like to know the truth—"

"Yes, of course. I don't happen to like your business, that's all. A mere personal whim. Well, miss, if you have no use for these clippings, I'd like to keep them. And now—I think you'd better leave. You'll find the elevator on your left as you go down the hall." He turned and strode into his room. When he was alone he began to curse.

The smartest people stopping at Paradis were usually to be found in certain places at fixed times of day, for everybody did pretty much the same things and social life followed an established routine. In the mornings, for instance, they were on the bridge paths, or at the tennis courts or watching the live bird shoots—the championships were run off here—and at 11 o'clock everybody went to the beach to see or to be seen. During the tennis matches the early afternoon witnessed another fashion show and there was golf, too; at tea time everybody danced at the Hotel Royale, either indoors or out of doors, depending upon the weather. From early evening onward the Casino, of course, was the center of attraction.

The Royale was a huge place and usually it was crowded; in the tea garden an American orchestra played in a fluted ivory and gold band shell and the patrons danced on a smooth stone floor laid level with the grass. Tables were set thickly under the trees and around 5 o'clock, when the place was thronged, it was extremely gay and colorful.

Sam came early and secured a good table, for it peevish Alanna to be anywhere except in the very center of things, and as he waited for her he noted a phenomenon which amused him considerably. Of course, he knew comparatively few of the many visitors to this resort and those he did know were recent acquaintances, nevertheless it seemed as if everybody knew him. Those he had met took pains to bow to him and to smile in a cordial manner, others eyed him and spoke to each other significantly.

What curiosity; what mannerly worship, he reflected. Any recipient of Alanna Wagner's favor, by reason of her father's wealth and prominence, became at once a celebrity. In spite of his cynical amusement Sam experienced an agreeable thrill at his good fortune. What a queer prank of fate it was; how odd he should experience this evidence of celestial favor. It staggered him and he wondered if he would be able to live up to it with befitting dignity. Yesterday a rugged toiler in the bowels of a coal mine, today the envy of Europe's most fashionable watering place! Truly, a man's destiny is inevitable. Well, the auguries at his birth had foretold riches and much luck and his star was certainly in the heavens now; his charms were potent.

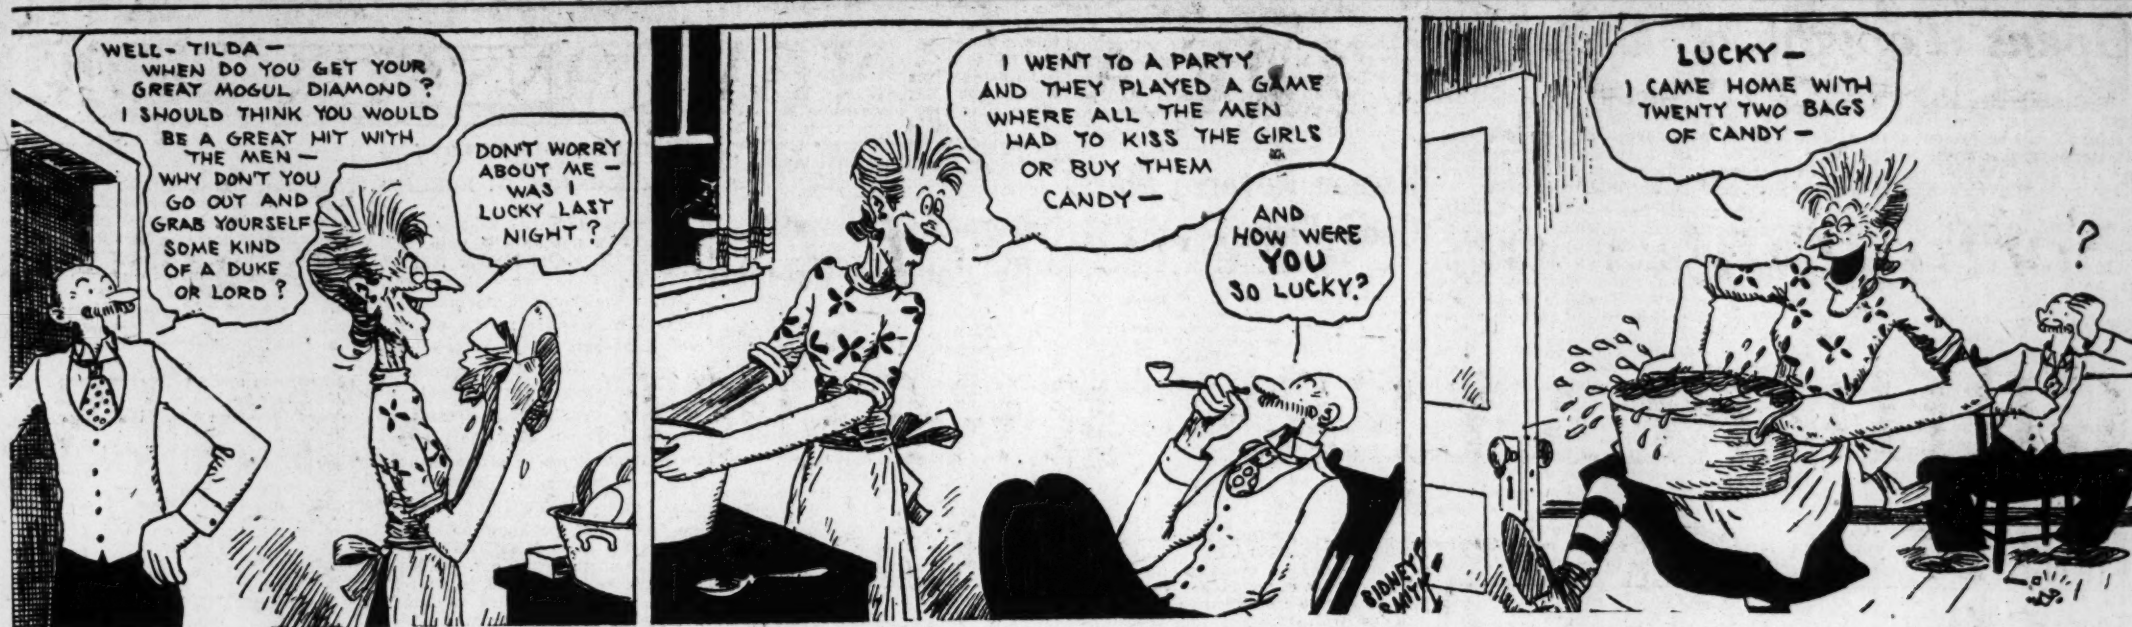

Alanna was almost up to the table before he saw her and rose to his feet, and he resented the fact that he had been so unobtrusive; it robbed him of a precious, breathless moment of anticipation. How lithe and free, how swift and purposeful she was. Always in a hurry. Life for her ran furiously and she rode it like a surfer balanced upon the crest of a wave. Where else reality it was a lesser riding crop—her face was stormy, against its underlying pallor her tan stood out curiously. It was like a thin brown veil beneath which her agitation was visible.

She came towards Sam like an arrow and when their eyes met he stiffened, a dreadful premonition smote him. He turned suddenly sick—the feeling was all too familiar, a wretched, humble cringing of the soul. And he read her expression correctly, for he had beheld it many times on many other faces, as, for instance, on that night in the roadhouse with Alice Hart and her friends. Usually they were naked, people tried to conceal it, but not Alanna. Like a flimsy garment pride was snatched away from him and he stood naked.

TARZAN AND THE LOST EMPIRE No. 49

Copyright, 1935, by Edgar Rice Burroughs, Inc. All rights reserved.

Tarzan sprang quickly to the aid of one of his fellows, but another of the enemy side, who had killed his opponent, ran to interfere. This fresh adversary was a professional gladiator, a man trained in the use of all his weapons, and Tarzan soon realized that only by great agility could he hope to hold his own.

The fellow did not rush. He was an old hand at the business. He soon discovered that Tarzan was adopting defensive tactics only, but whether this was for the purpose of feeling him out or whether it was part of a plan that would culminate in a swift surprise he could not tell. He did not care. He felt himself the master.

Judging Tarzan's skill with the sword by his skill with the shield, the gladiator thought that he was pitted against a highly skilled adversary, and he waited with the patience of years of experience for the ape-man to open up his offense and reveal his style. But Tarzan had no style with the sword. It was a strange weapon.

What he was waiting for was a lucky chance, the only thing that could assure him victory over this highly skilled swordsman. He counted upon his agility to save him until a swordsman would be free to come to his assistance. Gradually he gave way, and then, suddenly and without warning, a net dropped over his shoulders from behind.

Houston 'Second City' Claim Assailed by Horace Russell

Replying to an editorial in The Houston Post-Dispatch claiming that the Texas city ranks second among municipalities in the south as a result of the action of the census bureau in disallowing Greater Atlanta's total population, and commenting also upon the statements in that newspaper made by Colonel R. C. Kuddell, president of the Houston Chamber of Commerce, that Houston "will defend her title against the claims of Atlanta," Horace Russell, president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce Sunday reiterated that this city will continue its fight for a proper census rating.

When you think of Foot Correction.

think of Dr. PARKER'S HEALTH SHOES 116 ARCADE - JACKSON 4697.

In taking exception to the various claims made by the Houston chamber, Mr. Russell declared that "Atlanta is not on the defensive, but is on the offensive and the director of the census of the United States will shortly publish the official census of the United States in official form and list Atlanta as the second city in the south and twenty-second city in the United States."

Russell's Statement.
Mr. Russell's statement follows: "Colonel R. C. Kuddell, president of the Houston Chamber of Commerce, is quoted in a recent issue of The Post-Dispatch, Houston, Texas, as saying that Atlanta is on the defensive on the question of her census. Atlanta would like to call to the attention of her citizens that she is not on the defensive and never has been but is on the offensive and will remain on that side of the fight and it is most likely that Atlanta will secure what she asked for and is entitled to, as has been the custom in the past."

"Colonel Kuddell a little bit prematurely brags about Houston being the second city in the south when the facts are that the official figures of the census of Atlanta, as announced by the supervisor of the census of the Atlanta area and as adjusted and officially announced by the bureau of the census in Washington, give us a population of 360,002, which places Atlanta in second position in the south, behind New Orleans only, and puts us in position of being the twenty-second city in the United States in population."

"After announcing the official figures for Atlanta, as above stated, the director of the census has published the population of the borough of Atlanta in various places but he has never given any population for Atlanta, Ga., except his preliminary figures and his official figures as above stated."

"Colonel Kuddell, president of the Houston Chamber of Commerce, says: 'Houston will space no effort in defending her title as second largest city in the south,' and 'the Chamber of Commerce will continue its relentless opposition to the absurd claims made by Atlanta regarding her population.' He refers to various politicians who will support her effort. He is quoted as referring to Atlanta extending into two counties. Of course he is ignorant of the fact that Atlanta was built on the county line and has been in two counties for a long time and will continue to be."

Houston's Area.
"Colonel Kuddell is further quoted as saying in reference to the census of our limits, 'without resorting to the census of the United States, of course not ignorant of the fact that Houston admits in her own city directory that she has an area of 72.8 square miles which is nearly three times the area of Atlanta prior to the recent extension of the corporate limits of Atlanta. He charges the general assembly of Houston with 'gerrymandering' but Atlanta may wonder what the general assembly of the state of Texas was doing when they extended the Houston limits to the above stated figure at a time when Atlanta's area was 34.79 square miles. Houston was doing between 1920 and 1930 exactly what Birmingham did between 1910 and 1920 when she extended her boundaries nearly three times the boundaries of Atlanta and caught up with Atlanta in population. Birmingham failed in 1930 by a very substantial margin and Houston has failed in 1930 by the margin between 280,579 and 340,602."

"Colonel Kuddell is quoted as referring to some portion of Atlanta being 15 miles from downtown Atlanta. The furthest tip of the city is 10 miles from the center which is the elongated section reaching northeast on Peachtree road which is populated without break to distinguish it from the original borough of Atlanta. The average distance from the center of the city in all other directions is six to seven miles."

"Atlanta admits that she is a metropolitan city and is such. Her population of 360,002 is a cohesive concentration of people and no substantial breaks between the population of the various political units making up Atlanta. The fact is that any person driving over the area can tell that the borough of Atlanta and the borough of Decatur are one community and the same applies to the census of the state of Georgia. The general assembly of Georgia is the only authority in this state or the United States capable of creating or defining a city in Georgia and it has acted officially and created Atlanta and the bureau of the census of the United States has counted the people in Atlanta and they number 360,002."

Proud of Houston.
"Atlantans are proud of Houston as a southern city and proud of her progress in the past 10 years and proud that she has extended her limits over such a broad area and that she is making progress in every way and we shall continue to take pride in her progress and to keep a safe distance ahead and to operate and live in a better city."

"The director of the census of the United States has officially announced the population of Atlanta, Ga., and cannot and will not change it. He has published the population of one of the boroughs of that city at various places but even in this instance he has given the information that Atlanta, Ga., has the population referred to."

"Atlanta is not on the defensive but is on the offensive and the director of the census of the United States will shortly publish the official census of the United States in official form and list Atlanta as the second city in the south and twenty-second city in the United States."

"He believes that Atlantans feel that our case is in competent hands when being handled by our most competent attorney for many years, that Atlanta will place confidence in his associate counsel, Louis Titus, of Washington, D. C., a former Atlantian."

Remember---the parable of the Sower and the Seed?

Planted in Good Ground the Seed brought forth Fruit; some Hundredfold, some Sixtyfold, some Thirtyfold.

Applied to your MONEY it indicates that you should Now more than ever--- PUT IT TO ACTION and

KEEP IT CIRCULATING

NEVER in the past ten years would your dollar buy as much as it will TODAY. Right now, values in every Atlanta store and business house, are plainly evident. The daily necessities and the most exclusive luxuries are available at unusually low prices, but unless you shake off the bugaboo of hard times that has absolutely no foundation—you may never know what it is to be a wise buyer.

Never was the time when money should be foolishly squandered, but wise buying is another thing, and now is the time to put your money in circulation—the time when action means a fruitful reward—the time to heed the parable of the sower and the seed and put your money where it will flourish and do good. Let it reward you—accomplish more and be of more actual service to you—your family—your neighbor—your friends and your community than at any time during the entire decade passed.

By putting your dollars in circulation there'll be such commercial activity that you and everyone in this section will be materially benefited. It's money in action that makes for prosperity, and with the values presented in the stores today—it behooves every one of you to spend the day shopping—buying the things you want and need for the coming season.

'Taylor Case' Allusion Denied by J. K. Jordan

Denying that he had ever alluded to "the Taylor case," as charged by Solicitor-General John A. Boykin in a public statement Saturday in support of the candidacy of Judge John D. Humphries, J. K. Jordan, attorney, candidate for the superior court bench held by Judge Humphries, in a statement Sunday charged that the solicitor's purpose was to hold together the county machine.

Mr. Jordan's statement was as follows: "In no speech or newspaper have I ever alluded to the Taylor case referred to by Mr. Boykin in Sunday's Constitution. It is a principle with me that it would be unfair for a lawyer to review upon the stump any ruling of a judge, for such ruling might have been affected or controlled by some technical rule of law with which some of the public are unfamiliar. I fight fairly."

"There was, therefore, no apparent reason for Mr. Boykin to violate his
